Entering Reality's Realm of Knowledge and understanding,
Man stands alone—
unfamiliar—shattered.
But emerging as an individual,
He can tear down
the narrow provincial walls that once confined him.

Life laughs—
we are so easily confused by its contradictions.
Impishly
it tangles reality with fantasy
until together we are lost.
Independently searching,
we find each other in ourselves.

The force of a new challenge
shatters time—
flinging
isolated moments
like stars
into a blue-black sky
of reality.
Trapped in the crystalline latticework
of infinity,
They shimmer and glisten—
catching us
forever

Strangers meet—wandering
aimlessly—
Adrift in the abyss
of tomorrow.
Looking midst the confusion

STUDENT LIFE

In a whirlwind of activities
another year has run its course.
Banner waving, lunch line mobs
classroom blahs,
inscribed in crystal memories remain only
as treasured keepsakes of the past.

Contrasting shades of an unforgettable summer lingered in the minds of unsettled students, casting warm highlights on the in-between month of September. As old friends renewed contact and new friendships developed, individual responses merged to set a distinctive mood for this challenging year.

Among the most traditional of the Senior privileges is their right to use the Senior Steps in front of the school.

With the influx of nearly four hundred students from Williston High School, student body membership increased from last year's subnormal enrollment of 1,900 to a total of 2,300. Confused sophomores trying to find their way around the crowded halls wished they had paid more attention to their guides on Sophomore Orientation Day. Juniors enjoyed the security of a new status, while seniors assumed the responsibilities of their exalted position with an air of confidence.

Extra-curricular activities got off to an early start with the first home football game played only four days after school opened. Participating in community activities as well, students enjoyed a concert by the Lettermen in Brogden Hall and supported the first Young Life Super Club.

Robert Boone, organizer of the local Young Life Club, leads members in a rousing rendition of "Joshua Fit de Battle".

Andre Mallette is presented the Good Sportsmanship award by former Principal Wallace I. West and Student Body President Ed Warshauer, as Mr. Neil Stout looks on.

Events of the Fall Term

As controversy over the 1968 Presidential elections heightened, students voiced their concern for national affairs in spirited debates. Strong opinions led many into active campaigning. On election night Student Congress members discovered that the work of a precinct reporter requires time, patience and the will to stay awake. Each stood by until early morning hours, ready to take the final tabulation of his designated precinct to the WECT television station.

Anticipation of Homecoming—that gala mixture of mums, floats and football—started in mid-October. Tradition, adding its special quality to prevailing high spirits and enthusiasm, emphasized the festive atmosphere. On Friday, November eighth, the annual Homecoming parade brought school spirit to a peak for the game that night. During half-time Principal John J. Scott crowned Monica Felton Homecoming Queen and presented the Wallace I. West Sportsmanship Award to Andre Mallette. Drawing events to a close, the Homecoming Dance on Saturday night provided the perfect ending for a memorable weekend.

Juniors Barry Mooneyham and Walter Futch distribute NHHS mugs.

Early in December the Senior Class, preparing for Senior Week in the spring, sponsored a bake sale. Also looking ahead, juniors sold NHHS mugs to make money for the Junior-Senior Prom. In its second year of operation the Wilmington Civic Youth Council continued to promote understanding between teenagers and the community through one of their many projects, in which members planned and directed a series of television programs. Channel 6 presented the first of these on December 24.

In an all-out effort to collect a total of seventy thousand carbonated drink bottles, Student Government extended their bottle drive through January. Devoting much time and work to this project, volunteer student workers raised money by this drive to go toward new uniforms for the band.

Soon after school reopened, students reluctantly faced the reality of mid-term exams. Attendance in the National Honor Society coaching center increased as apprehension grew. For the first time, mid-term exams lasted only one class period each and did not interrupt the regular schedule. Everyone enjoyed a bonus day of vacation on Friday, January 24, while teachers completed semester records. Also during this time seniors made final application to colleges and hopefully submitted information to scholarship committees.

With an appropriate theme, "The Look of Love," the Valentine Dance on February 7 provided a welcome break in the winter routine. The Fifth Generation entertained while Queen Vickie Bass and King David Sandlin reigned over the evening.

Students congregate in front of the Student Union during fifth lunch period.

"The Four Cats" — Joe Murchison, Herb McKim, David Rouse, and Bill Brooks—add their own special touch to a pep rally.

Kay Marlowe, Margie Ennis, Kathy Gore, Anthony Richardson, Mike Pepper, and Wayne Baker admire the trophies they won at the regional VICA convention.

Bringing recognition not only to themselves but also to NHHS, several outstanding seniors won honors this year in regional and statewide competition. Awards ranged from academic achievement to public speaking.

From the last week of February through the end of May, a series of special weeks interspersed other activities. Beginning with Sportsmanship Week, February 24-28, attention focused around school spirit and active student participation. During this week, however, unfortunate circumstances proved the patience and understanding of faculty, administration and student body at large. To relieve the tension hundreds of concerned students attended a "Speak-In" and by calmly airing their grievances inspired a greater feeling of unity throughout the school.

Seniors Look Forward to Graduation

Held in Brogden Hall on March 29, the final Teenage Princess Pageant initiated the events of Wilmington's Annual Azalea Festival. Thirty-three high school contestants smiled nervously and tried their best to appear graceful as they walked the basic floor pattern in front of four military judges.

At the Junior-Senior Prom in April, tuxedos and long gowns combined with the tropical garden setting to sustain a mood of elegance throughout the evening.

To exhibit the abilities of teenagers in the Community, Wilmington Youth Council members sponsored Youth Week during the second week of May. Crowded into five days activities included—a government day, film festival, parade, religious service, and a second "Be-In" which also featured an art show. Reflecting the spirit of spring, members of the May Court led the ceremonies at the May Dance.

As vacation approached, students preoccupied with thoughts of summer interests let their classroom attention wander. Sophomores looked back on their first days of confusion with amusement while juniors anticipated the rank and privileges connected with their Senior year. Senior Week added a hint of nostalgia to the last few days of school for the Class of '69. Traditional functions—such as, the Senior Banquet, and presentation of the Senior class gift to NHHS—drew students closer together as they envisioned graduation.

Executive Department Creates New Post,

Student body officers Ed Warshauer, president, Mary Miller, secretary, and Bill Renn, vice-president, introduce themselves at orientation day which they sponsored in late August.

Secretary of Academic Affairs Joins Cabinet

Along with other branches of student government, the Executive Department sponsored a bottle drive to raise money toward the purchase of band uniforms and a car smash to boost sagging school spirit. In August the Executive Department sponsored an orientation day for new students at NHHS.

Introduction of the coaching center as a student government controlled function made necessary the creation of a new Cabinet post, Secretary of Academic Affairs.

During the half-time activities of the homecoming football game the student government awarded Monica Felton the homecoming crown and Andre Mallette the Wallace I. West Sportsmanship trophy.

Monica Felton, Secretary of School Spirit, George Currie, Secretary of Public Relations, and Bobby Kelly, Chief Judicial Marshal, supervise the drawing of a poster by Buck Dawkins, Secretary of Grounds and Parks, for clean-up week during the winter.

Beverley Barker is surprised by Mr. Stout's news of her appointment to the new office, Secretary of Academic Affairs.

Muriel Kovacs, Secretary of Finance, and Richard Wilson, Secretary of Elections, tally the ballots while Suellen Smith, Secretary of Treasury, checks the returns.

House And Senate Join With WECT-TV

After the first week of the bottle drive, Mary Jo Lee, Nora Tubbs, Richard Wheeler, Dalia Hernandez and Daneille Ports keep a running tally of the bottles collected during the drive.

To finance the purchasing of band uniforms for the NHHS Marching Band, the Senate in co-operation with Student government sponsored a drive to collect seventy thousand bottles. Senators helped the student government by selling the remaining Wildcat license tags at the Hoggard-Hanover football game and during homeroom period.

Before a basketball game; the Senate sponsored a car smash to boost school spirit. During sportsmanship week the Senate held a door decoration contest between each homeroom. Winning homerooms received a trophy for their originality.

Senate members Vangie Waggett and Kathy MacKay paint a poster while Dottie Gieschen, Dalia Hernandez, and Melodie Shipton draw banners for "Fill Brogden Hall Night" in which we played Durham.

Senate members Julie Spivey, Richard Epps, Walter Futch, and Susan Efird discuss election returns with Ken Murphy, news director, WECT-TV.

In Expediting County Election Returns

Along with the senators, six homeroom representatives served as runners to the polling precincts for WECT-TV during the November election. They received much acclaim from Channel Six personnel for their reports.

House members decided to return Monica Felton's homecoming crown and in future years to give each queen her crown. In the fall a committee revised the constitution. After the representatives read the revisions of the constitution in their respective homerooms, the students voted on them.

After reading the constitutional revisions, representatives Rhonda Vaught and Carolyn Walton wait for a reaction from their classmates.

Bill Renn, President of the House, and Jan Needham, Chaplain, choose a devotion for the next House meeting.

Helen Memory distributes the April issue of the Wildcat to homeroom representatives Vonnie Yeager, Janet Blake, Roberta Bazemore, Jackie Blackmore, Donna Price, Rhonda Vaught, and Debbie Alberti.

Judicial Marshals Regulate Student Traffic

Apprehended, Marlene Shain receives her summons from Robert Brown while Peggy Gosey gives her name, rank, and homeroom number to Carl Marshburn.

Chief Provost Marshal Richard Epps gives hall marshal assignments and directions for making arrests to Chips Craig, Gary King, Lorenzo Smith, Mike Todd, and Lloyd Nunalee, members of ROTC.

Nemesis of those felonious souls that have the audacity to go up the down staircase, or jaywalk, or commit any one of the many misdemeanors for which one can be embraced by the "long arm of the law," student court convened every Wednesday morning in the auditorium under the watchful eye of Major Raymond

With the aid of the Judicial Marshals, the student court fulfilled its dream of "law and order" in our halls.

Judges John Godwin, Herb McKim, Fred Ourt, Mark Legwin, and Hartford Boykin listen while Bobby Kelly reads the case of New Hanover High School versus Mary Miller.

Chairmen Coordinate Class Activities

Lee Garris, Alex Fonveille, and Tommy Smith examine samples of senior calling cards as Betsy Coleman and Maxine Robbins make their decision.

Chairmen Willa Gupton and Pam Powell enjoy a coke in their new mugs while Debbie Todd and Diane Tucker write out their receipts.

Selling senior calling cards in the fall and distributing them in the spring was the main project of the senior homeroom chairman.

Junior homeroom chairmen had the job, however, of planning, financing, and finally putting on the Junior-Senior. A bake sale in the fall and the sale of "NHHS" mugs in the spring were the solution to their financial problem.

This year sophomores who had a serious illness or death in the family, received a card from their homeroom chairmen expressing the wishes and condolences of their classmates.

In accordance with their duties seated Teresa McClellan, Gwen Mills, Mary Nurnberger, standing Marlene Carlson, David Jenkins, Ronnie Pittman, Sherri Thames, Geri Wells, Donna Willetts, and Tonya Johnson review lists of sophomores with a serious illness or death in the family in order to send a card.

Social Marshals Reflect NHHS Hospitality

Bright orange pumpkins, scary ghosts, and witches created Halloween spirit at the annual Faculty Tea given by the Social Marshals in the Student Union. Ushering at graduation exercises and PSTA meeting gave the girls and boys a further chance to serve their school. In the main lobby, Christmas spirit glowed from their tree with its colorful decorations. Hearts and cupids were prevalent at the Valentine Dance sponsored by the social marshals. The Fifth Generation, a local band, played for the dance.

Sandy Weathersbee, Lynne Boone, Laura Babb, and Ellen Stanley prepare decorations for the Halloween Faculty Tea.

Susan Hefelfinger, head social marshal, and Seldie Pigford put the final touches on the tree as Mike Smith arranges the presents in the main lobby.

Social marshals: Billy Hammond, Claudia Horrell, Steve Wells, Sandy Weathersbee, Seldie Pigford, Susan Hefelfinger, Lynne Boone, Laura Babb, Maxine Robbins, Jackie Wells, and Fran Head pause briefly outside the Student Union before preparing for the Valentine Dance.

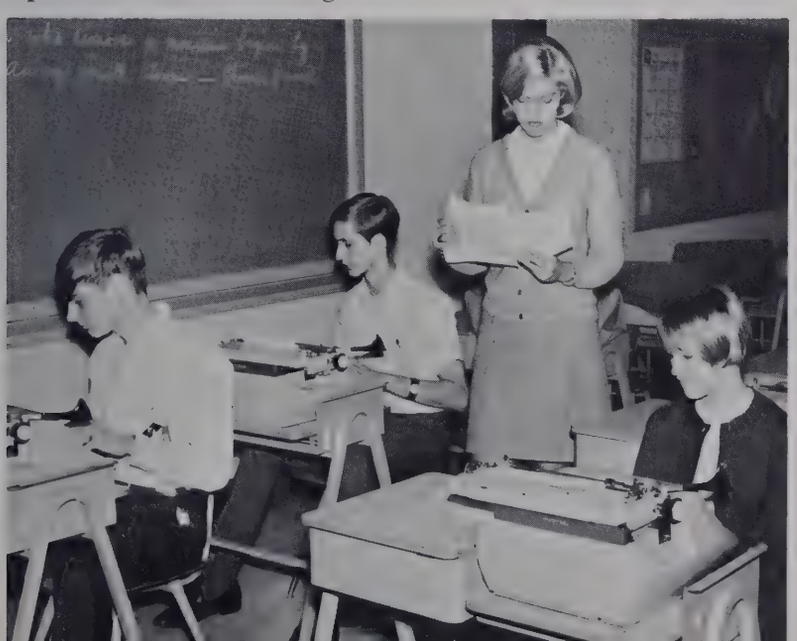

Bill Brooks, Vangie Waggett, and Suzanne Kelly unload the 1968 Orange and Black Handbooks as Fran Head and Pam Powell check homeroom lists for distribution to students.

Student Publications Keep School Informed

Revisions of the Orange and Black Handbook began in January 1968. Committee members examined last year's handbook page by page to determine what changes were necessary. As the ads committee contacted local merchants for advertisements, a committee worked on the cover design. By May the committee completed their work and sent the book to the printers to be ready for delivery to students in September 1968.

In the fall the Telephone Directory committee members distributed name and number forms to all students through the homerooms and typed the names in alphabetical order. As another committee designed the cover, the sales staff sold advance subscriptions to the directory, which was ready for distribution just before Christmas.

Steve Wells, Martin Sondey, and June Troutman type names for the phone directory while Jean Andrews, co-chairman, alphabetizes the remaining forms.

Carolyn Walton and Seldie Pigford wait in line while Diana Jones turns in subscription sales money to Randy Smith, business manager.

Wildcat Continues Tradition of Awards

Rosalie Conrad, business manager, asks Mr. Roger Williams to buy an ad in the Wildcat for Kingoff's Jewelers.

By combining the many and varied literary talents of the members of Journalism I and II, the Wildcat became the center of attention at the SIPA convention again this year. Returning with another award of excellence, the Wildcat continued its high standard of publication through its ten informative and entertaining issues. These issues included editorials by students, creative works of art—such as, poems and short stories, general news, and coverage of all sports at NHHS.

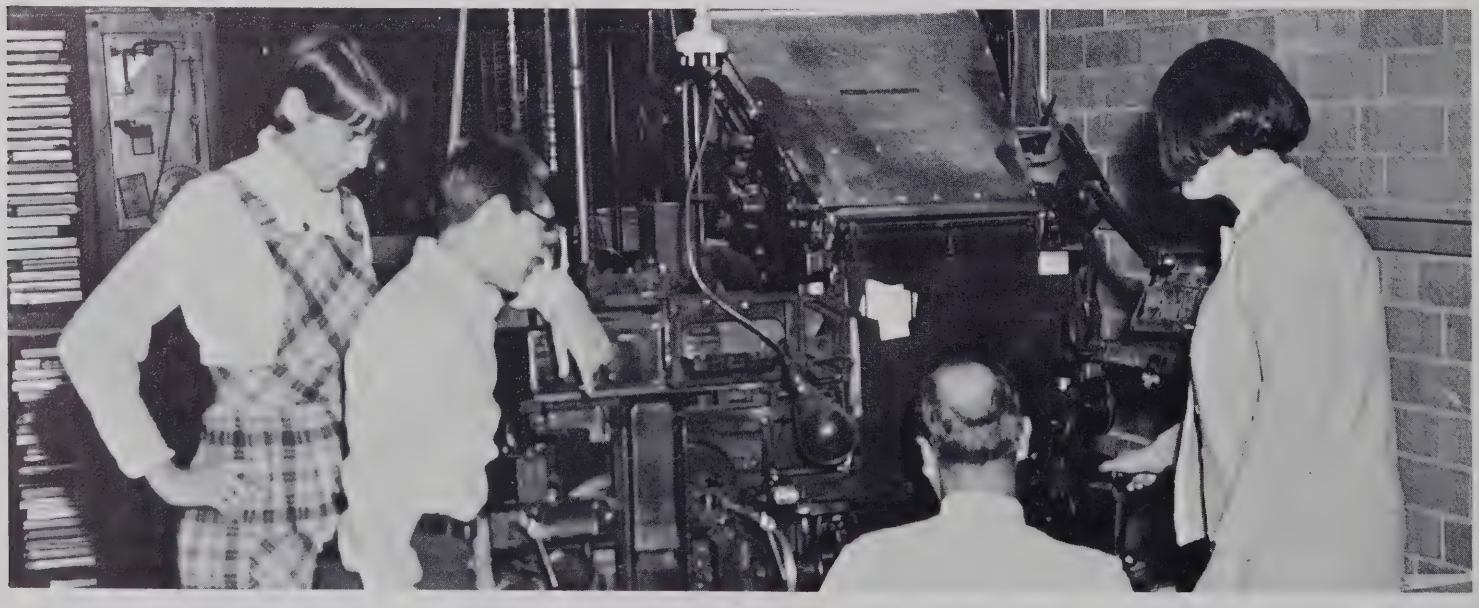

Putting up a poster, Linda Lee and Kathy White announce the sale of the first issue of the Wildcat.

Mrs. Lane, adviser, and Nora Tubbs, news editor, review writing techniques while Kathy McKay and Gail Russ study a student's journalistic paper.

Inspecting printing machinery, Kathy White, Mary Scott, editor-in-chief, and Billy Hammond listen intently to Mr. H. E. Fryer of Wilmington Printing Company as he explains the machine's purpose.

After each issue of the Wildcat members of Journalism I class—Standing: Beth Kelly, Jane Divine, Alice Pearsall, Linda Lee. Second Row: Debbie Walker, Richard Epps, Arnetta Abraham, John D'Lugin. Third Row: Billy Hammond, Jody McKoy, Debbie Webb, Grenoldo Fraizer, offer suggestions for the paper's improvement.

Brian Jones, feature editor, and Lee Howe, photographer, develop one of the many pictures taken for the upcoming Wildcat issue.

Marica Patelos, Star News coordinator; and Mary Scott critically reread the Teen Tattler, an article which appears daily in the Morning Star News.

Donald Massengil, sports editor, and Susan Bridges, news coordinator, type completed copy blocks in order to meet a deadline.

Business manager Randy Smith and Mr. Meadows, advisor, attempt the endless task of balancing the budget.

'69 Yearbook Staff

Pictures, copy, headers and advertisements slowly developed into the '69 HANOVERIAN. To gather and organize information about clubs, administration, and classes is the job of twenty-four students, who work to maintain award-winning status set by former staffs. For the graduating class, the staff gave a signing party at which the seniors received their HANOVERIANS a day earlier than the underclassmen.

Valerie Garrenton and Glenda Harrell write down correct spelling as Janice Mooneyham, class staff head, Dawn Pearson, and Hilda Lewis match faces to names.

Honors Senior Class with Signing Party

Quill and Scroll Honors Journalistic Talent

On January sixteenth the Quill and Scroll club held a banquet at the King Neptune Restaurant. They inducted thirty new members, boosting the total membership to forty-seven. Master of ceremonies was the president, Fred Ourt. Other officers were vice-president, Richard Wilson; secretary, Jean Andrews; treasurer, Randy Smith, and social chairman, Nora Tubbs. Quill and Scroll membership consists of junior and senior members of the Wildcat and HANOVERIAN staffs. This honorary organization provided limitless opportunities for these members to further their literary interests through correspondence with the International Honor Society for High School Journalists.

Planning for the induction banquet at the King Neptune Restaurant are the officers: Nora Tubbs, Randy Smith, Fred Ourt, Richard Wilson, and Jean Andrews.

Art Club Creates Mural for Concert

Susan Davis and Pamela Bryant prepare a bulletin board on art in today's society.

Students who wished to further their skills in art met regularly this year to develop their interest among the student body. One of their projects was the upkeep of a bulletin board outside the art room, which had such eye-catching topics as the question "Is art moving away from reality?" Members also painted an attractive mural depicting a village in winter as the background for the Hanover Singers Christmas Concert. As a fund-raising project the club sold doughnuts. During the winter months students worked on their entries for the Spring Art Exhibit, held in Brogden Hall in May.

Kenneth Duke and Linda Dunn complete their entries in the Spring Art Show as Mr. Boone instructs them on the correct art form.

Winter comes to Brogden Hall as Kenneth Duke, Wayne Reaves, and Susan Davis add last-minute touches to the backdrop of the Hanover Singers Christmas Concert.

Margaret Newman, Rich Buffington, and Liz Buffington, members of the stage crew arrange the furniture for a scene of "The Haunting of Hill House."

Wes Knape, Jon Greene, and Bill Hewett, not having seen the script before tryouts, successfully attempt a bit of ad-libbing to win their parts.

With hard work and enormous effort, the National Thespians brought to life six major productions. Students of the drama class chose and produced the plays; some even ventured into the task of directing them. An efficient stage and make-up crew kept the performances moving smoothly.

To become a members of the organization, students need a minimum of ten points. They receive these points by working on the set, preparing scenery, or playing a part in one of the plays.

Becky Lamb and Liz Buffington hurriedly touch up Clare Glore's make-up in between scenes.

Gail Russ and Donna Orrell, frightened by a menacing spirit, watch Bryan Jones and Gary Grady, who bravely defend them.

Present Six Productions

Mike Smith, John Ambrosiano, and Steve Woodbury try on and select costumes for "Hope is a Thing with Feathers" as Clare Glore, director, gives them helpful suggestions.

Bobby Hattaway, Janet Blake, Keith Farmer, Clare Glore, Liz Buffington, John Godwin, Jewel Butler, Gale Washington, Patsy Roberts, Mike Smith, Donna Orrell, and Gail Russ, representing characters of various plays, ride on Homecoming float.

Wes Knape and Janet Blake look at the confusion caused by Keith Farmer, Bill Hewett, Bess Wallace, Bryan Jones, Clare Glore, Bobby Hattaway, and Jon Greene as they make an attempt to explain the simple misunderstanding late in the third scene of "See How They Run."

Christmas Concert Highlights Musical Year

Gloria, in excelsis De-o! This familiar Christmas phrase echoed and reverberated off the walls of the concert hall as the Hanover Singers presented their annual Christmas Concert. Among the selections were such seasonal favorites as "Joy to the World" and "Hallelujah Chorus". During the Christmas season members of Hanover Singers also performed at such civic clubs as the Optimist Club, Exchange Club, and Lions Club. Hanover Singers sponsored a money raising project in which they provided Reeses Cups, Hershey bars, and Butternuts to the faculty members. Located in the faculty lounges, these snacks offered a refreshing treat for all the administration.

While Jim Tubbs picks out important announcements, David Hines places musical information on the Hanover Singers' bulletin board.

Members of Hanover Singers board their faithful activity bus which will take them to a performance at a local civic club during the Christmas holidays.

Tommy Smith, President, and Maxine Robbins, Student Director, recheck arrangements for the Christmas Concert while Jackie Wells, Secretary, confirms a future performance with a civic club.

In order to obtain a six-week grade Ann Marley, Monica Felton, Kenneth Duke and Richard Millard perform in a quartet accompanied by Mrs. Price, Director.

Girls' Chorus Expands Musical Knowledge

Candace Gore and Jewell Butler repair torn music covers while Leslie Crockett files miscellaneous musical scores.

One, two, three, Sing—a melodious harmony of young girls' voices followed. After an exhausting hour of "practice makes perfect," members of Girls' Chorus achieved the final success of performing an intricately patterned song perfectly. Girls' Chorus prepared fifty-one untrained girls in the development of a choral group.

Girls' Chorus, although a class of expansion on musical knowledge, performed in two concerts—the Spring and Christmas.

Marian Koch, Priscilla Clark, and Muriel Kovacs pay close attention to Mrs. Price's instruction in the use and history of the metronome.

Pep Band shows student body their support for the team as it displays its talent at Hoggard, NHHS game.

Pep Band Goes Co-Ed

Funny hats, orange overalls, and distinctive music characterize the pep band. This year girls joined the band and added versatility to the group. Their playing at pep rallies and accompanying the team on out-of-town games, promoted school spirit and unity among students.

Preparing for a pep rally by putting on the orange overalls, trademark of the Pep Band, are Debbi Alberti, David Smith, Fran Head, and Raleigh Todd.

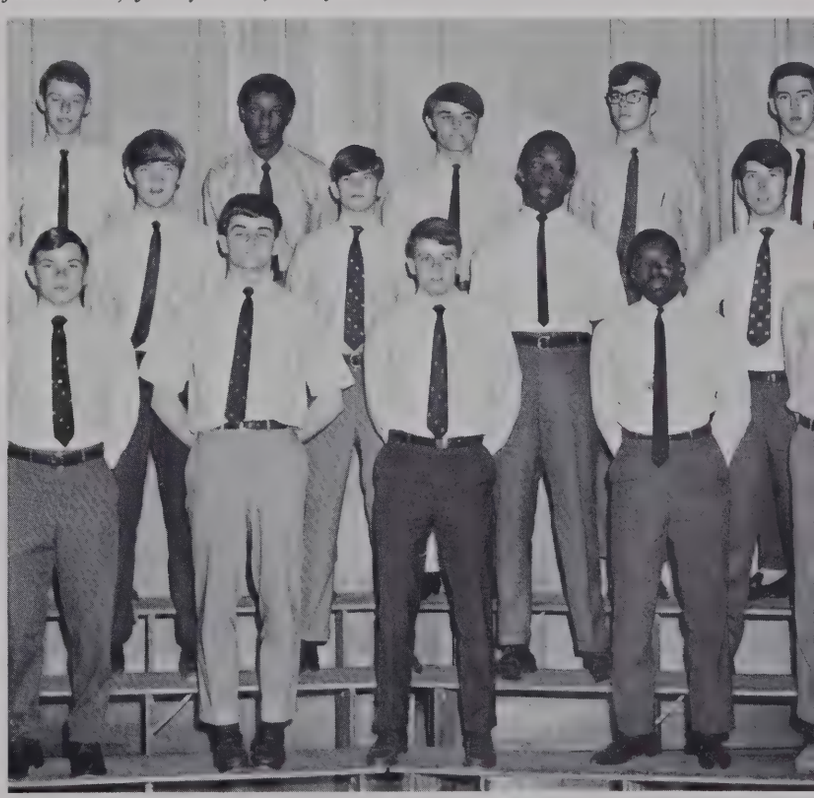

Boys' Chorus Becomes a Regular Class

After months of preparation Boys' Chorus finally became a regular fifty-five minute class containing sixteen boys who furthered their musical talents. During December Boys' Chorus highlighted the Christmas Concert by performing for the first time as an individual group. Their repertoire consisted of such notable carols as "Winter Song" and "Masters in the Hall". Also included in the performance was the French "Lullaby of the Christ Child."

"Up, Up and Away"- Homecoming Float Theme

Offering an exciting change of pace in school life for musically inclined students, Popular Music Club met every other Tuesday after school. These group sessions provided many hours of musical entertainment through singing, instrumental accompainment, and films. In order to participate in the NHHS Homecoming Parade, club members decorated their float with an assortment of multi-colored balloons, exhibiting the main theme, Up, Up, and Away, Wildcats. Several members rhythmically sang the popular song—"Up, Up and Away"—while riding on the float.

During a monthly meeting Mary Lorek and Bill Tucker sing while Jay Goodwin accompanies them on the guitar in order to tape the song "As Tears Go By."

Juddye Pulaski, Mary Lorek and Lois Hope enthusiastically sing "Up, up, and Away" as Ann Marley and Leslie Crockett ride on the Popular Music Club's entry in the NHHS Homecoming Parade.

During one of the many varied group sessions of Popular Music Club, Betsy Coleman and Terry Rodgers discuss the upcoming films to be shown.

At an informal meeting Betsy Humbles puts on more records while Lois Hope and Wanda Johnson select an album of a favorite artist.

MAJORETTES: Conne Schwarz, Head; Muriel Kovacs, Betsy Coleman, Co-Head; Vicki Perry, Lynne Boone, Marlene Carlson, Rhonda McLawhon, and Alice McMillian.

Colorful Majorettes Lead Homecoming Parade

High-stepping majorettes led the New Hanover High School band throughout the year. Adding color and beauty to the band the girls worked long and hard at their routines. Performing at the Homecoming Parade, the Azalea Festival Parade, and Jacksonville and Wilmington Christmas Parades, they proudly represented the school. Besides marching in parades, they also performed at pep rallies and during half-time at home football games. At the New Hanover-Hoggard game an exciting fire-baton routine performed by Connie Schwarz and Betsy Coleman thrilled the crowd.

An afternoon practice shows Conne Schwartz, Muriel Kovacs, Rhonda McLawhon, Pam DeSantis, Lynne Boone, Betsy Coleman, and Marlene Carlson.

Band Creates New Unit - ROTC Drum-Bugle Corps

Band director Mr. McAdams directs an afternoon practice before the Azalea Parade.

Spirited music began to play as the New Hanover High School Band led the Homecoming Parade. Through a combination of ideas, the band and ROTC created the ROTC Drum and Bugle Corps. Chosen from the marching band, the boys became ex-officio members of ROTC as well as members of the band. Presenting a Christmas Parade downtown and performing a Christmas concert in Brogden Hall provided seasonal music for parents and students. Plans materialized for a bottle drive and bridge tournament to help finance the purchasing of new band uniforms.

Intra-School Competition Revives Chess Club

Chess opponents Dale Wright and Billy Register are coached by bystanders Marshall Martin, Johnny Parker, and John Register, during a practice session.

John Register, President, faces opponent Marshall Martin in the opening moments of their chess game.

Disciplined thought combined with controlled action, deep concentration spilling over from a player to chess men, the pleasure of putting mind over mater and of vying for majesty—these intangibles lured club members to weekly meetings in the student union.

During these regularly planned meetings, President John Register led the eleven members to consider wins, losses, and possibilities of any further tournaments, interschool or intramural for the club.

Whether a veteran or beginner, every chess club member improved by playing-practice each Thursday afternoon.

Student Enthusiasts Exhibit Sailing Skills

Despite frequent bone-chilling winds, members of the Sailing Club hoisted their sails every Saturday to enjoy a relaxing morning. Besides sailing, the students also emphasized safety on land and sea. When the weather became too cold even for this hardy group of sailors, they met indoors to plan possible sites for spring races and discuss the latest sailing equipment in boats, sails and rigging.

Warren Sanders and Priscilla Wilson cast off for a carefree morning of sailing in Masonboro Sound.

Flower Sale Boosts School Spirit

Malevolent forces which compelled students to lose their school spirit crumbled under the hands of school spirit club members as a result of indefatigible effort. Members marched on to crush all opposition reigning within the school by developing a giant automaton to destroy any further disgrace of sports participants. In addition posters, paper flowers in the school colors, and banners displayed the effort for a relentless pursuit of a just and honorable end to the attitudes of NHHS students.

Varsity Lettermen Manage Concession Stand

Since the Letterman's Club is mainly a service club, it consisted of varsity players who had earned letters.

Members took their turns at managing concession stands at the home basketball games.

Shining shoes and selling score cards at the fall games were the two money making projects of the year.

Their final project, the banquet for the varsity football, basketball, and baseball players, culminated the weekly meetings of the year.

Bill Mason served as president for the group.

Early in the year the Key Club sponsored a campus clean-up program to beautify the grounds around the school. Members acted as parking lot attendants for the Southeastern District Teachers meeting of the North Carolina Education Association, also in October. In order to raise money for this activity the Key Club held a car wash.

Key Clubbers initiated a Big Brother program designed to entertain the underprivileged youths at the Boys' Brigade Club. Each Key Club member took a little brother and entertained him by taking him to a basketball game.

Another money making project of the Key Club was the Annual Follies presented in the spring of the year.

Keyettes, Civinettes Aid

In weekly visits to the Girls' Club, the Keyettes displayed their willingness to serve by helping the girls with their homework and teaching piano lessons to those who wished to learn. Keyettes brought smiles to the faces of the residents of Grotgen's Nursing Home with weekly visits during which devotionals given by the girls brought reassurance to patients. Given jointly by Keyettes and Key Club, the Teachers' Banquet showed student appreciation. Keyettes represented our school throughout the year at the Kiwanis Club luncheons. During the Christmas season a party given by Keyettes honored the Key Club. Each Keyette drew a name and prepared a stocking for that member of the Key Club.

Girls' Club and Nursing Home

Helping to make Halloween happier for the Girls' Club, Julia Rehder, Bill James, Civinettes Sweetheart, Diane Vereen, secretary, Laura Babb, and Linda Lee prepare black and orange candy bags.

Civinettes received its charter at an impressive ceremony this fall and officially started functioning with the help of thirty-five enthusiastic girls. On Halloween the girls made candy bags for the Girls' Club. Their annual project of cleaning the Student Union brought them the appreciation of the entire student body. For Christmas they helped repair toys for the Youth Council's toy drive and gave a party for the children at New Hanover Memorial Hospital. A fashion show in which Civinettes modeled spring and summer wear for local merchants concluded the year's activities.

Mary Jo Lee, president, Betty Barnhill, Sara Sneeden, Debbi Alberti, and Bootsie Cherry, sergeant-at-arms, revive the looks of the Student Union with enthusiasm, determination, and hard work.

During a Saturday morning cleanup, Bill James, Bill Nemargut, and Rusty Caines, help David Sandlin and Mike Wheeler clean up the campus.

Larry Rose, President, and David Rouse leave for a Rotary luncheon which two members attended each week.

Interact Club Sponsors a Barbecue Supper

Interact members Franc Payne and John Fox help Peggy Gosey, Sweetheart, choose the turkey which they gave to a woman and her nine children at Thanksgiving.

To insure enough money to finance their service projects, Interact members had a barbecue supper and a bread sale in the fall. Before Halloween the members collected money for UNICEF. Periodically throughout the year they cleaned up the campus on Saturday mornings.

Interact members met on the Wednesday night before Christmas at the Grotgen Nursing and Convalescent Home to entertain the occupants by singing, featuring Ed Warshauer on the organ. During basketball season the club sponsored buses to the Raleigh and Jacksonville games. In February members went from house to house soliciting money for the Heart Fund.

Russell Lee looks on approvingly as Mr. Hunt, YMCA treasurer, receives a check from Buzz Davenport for a needy boy's membership.

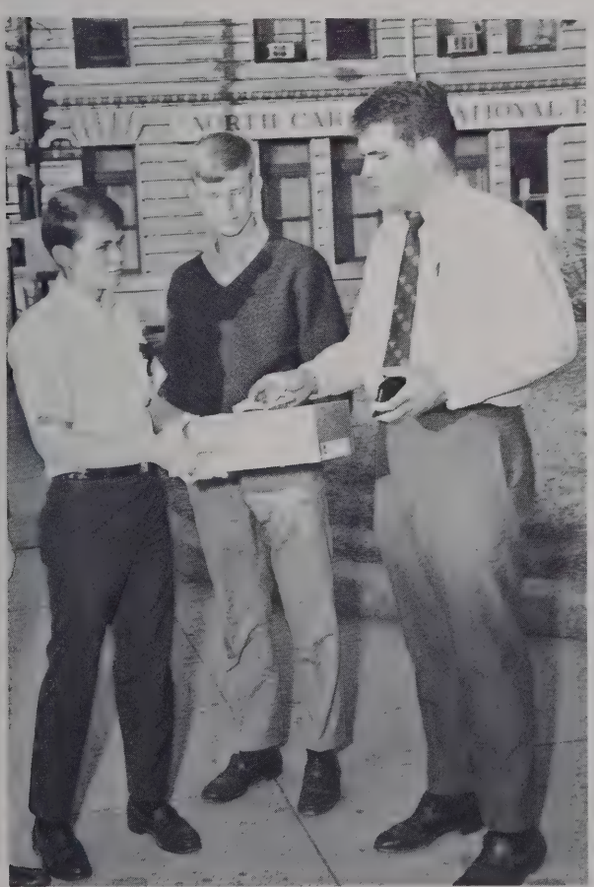

Interact members Danny James, Dennis Carter, Fred Ourt, Bobby Kelly, Mac McKeithan, Tuney Nunnelee, Richard Wheeler, and Bill Godwin form an assembly line for making barbecue plates for the supper that they had in October.

Whether Aiding in Lab or Library;

Casandra Newkirk hands Woody Conette an additional molecule model to hang in the chemistry room for exhibition.

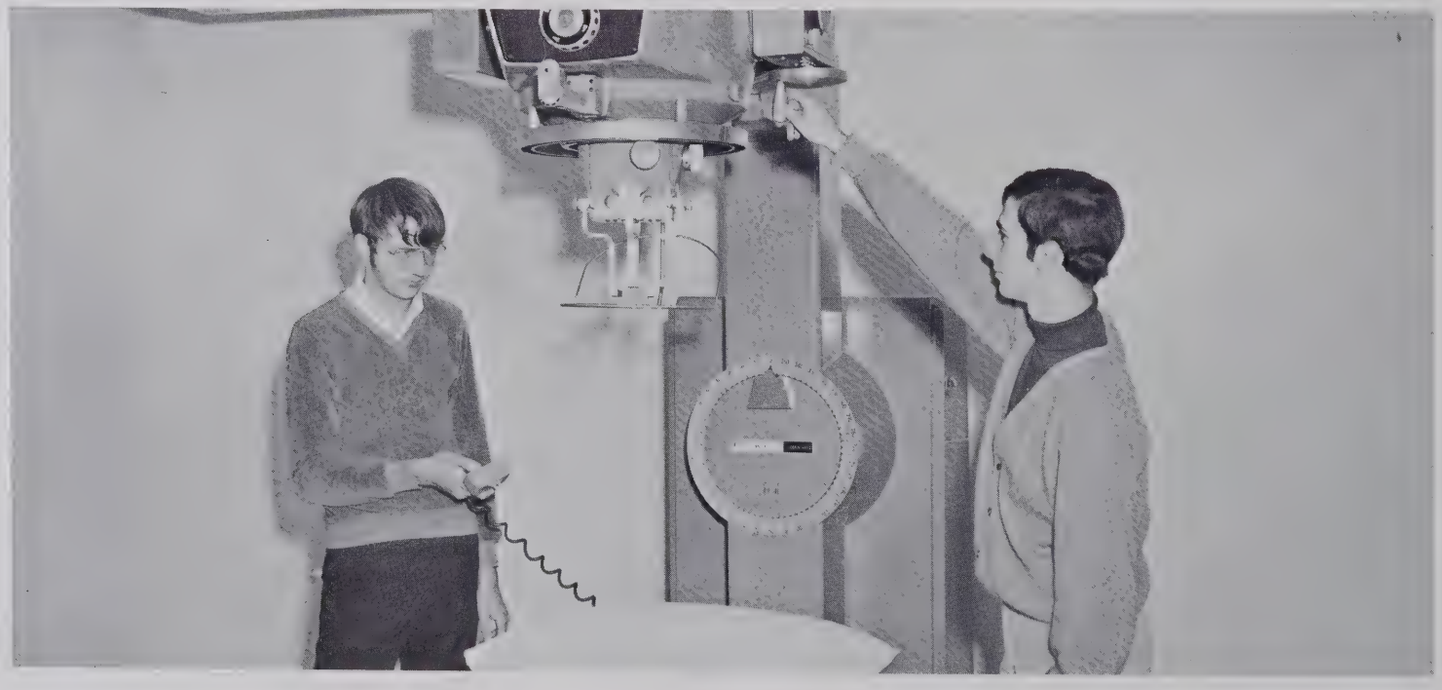

Chemistry assistants Tom Johnson, Melinda Glazier, Jim Jordan, check on an experiment prior to students performance.

Members of the Chemistry Assistants program proved to Mrs. LeGwin and Miss Emmart that though they were a diminutive group, they were audacious workers. Daily ten assistants tackled the jobs of helping students, grading papers, setting up the lab, and hanging molecule models and project displays.

Hard work became pleasant, meaningful activity to this group, for they received the satisfaction of helping themselves through review as well as the pleasure of assisting their fellow students.

Clerking, Filing or Typing for the Office;

Candace Gore, Linda Dunn, Susan Eckhardt, Betsy Collins, and Barbara Sullivan stamp books and magazines, and begin to shelve several reference books.

Aside from the normal process of shelving and categorizing books, some library assistants aided students in search of books and magazines, while others checked out and shelved the numerous assortment of books contained in the library.

In addition, to assist with clerical work, these assistants typed records, book inventories and library card files. They distributed through the homerooms the new styled plastic library cards.

Taking charge of assignments and work loads, librarians Miss Fannie O'Keef and Mrs. Martha Boone along with the assistants kept the library running at maximum efficiency.

Dianne Lee, Priscilla Wilson, and Susan Sneeden alphabetize the catalog cards which Delores Bracey, and Carey Gordon hand them.

Processing and categorizing books proves to be quite a job to library assistants Carrie Mishow, Elizabeth McKoy, Alice Batchelor, Cathy Andrews, Rosita Rivenbark, and Cynthia Brus.

Entertaining and Serving in the Nursery,

Ginger King files choice forms, and Linda Walton and Pam Ward complete a transcript, while Mary Miller types a notice-of-graduation letter.

Carolyn Walton, Arnetta Abraham, and Jimmy Johnson sort mail for the teachers' mailboxes.

During their study halls, forty students served as office assistants. They filed cumulative folders and program cards, processed transcripts, compiled rank-in-class data, and handled student activity lists, in addition to typing and distributing daily bulletins, book lists, and attendance-in-class sheets. Also, the students supplied teachers with corridor passes, eighth period slips, and other necessary forms. As a side line, they managed the Lost and Found Department.

Prompting the excited children in singing "Jolly Old Saint Nicholas" are Jo Ann McMahon, Julie Blackwell, Jacqueline Brunson, and Linda Dunn as the children bring Christmas spirit to library patrons.

To the eleven students in child care classes, the nursery assistants' program provided an opportunity to gain practical experience. In October the assistants played hostesses to goblins and ghosts as the children performed a Halloween skit. On the night of December eighteenth the nursery assistants helped the children present a Christmas program for their parents by writing the play, making the costumes, prompting the young actors, and serving refreshments.

Field Trips Stimulate Future Scientists

Fifteen members of Future Scientists of America helped to further their scientific interests by taking field trips and enjoying lecturers. Professor John Patty from North Carolina State University spoke on Laser beams and local merchant, Mr. Hendrickson, gave an idea of the pharmaceutical business. Field trips to Hercules Explosives and International Nickel proved interesting to the group. The Engineering Open House at State helped the members decide on careers they wished to pursue.

Future Teachers Provide Forum for Teachers

Members of the Future Teachers of America had the opportunity of being in contact with the problems and issues of today's teacher. Through interesting talks on subjects which ranged from Teachers' strikes to the "Masters-in-Teaching" program, they gained a better background in education. In addition, the club provided a small teacher assistant program, in which students obtained valuable experience in grading papers, recording grades, and observing different teaching methods. To raise funds for a scholarship presented to a senior member, they sold Kadet stationery to neighbors and friends. A faculty tea climaxed the year by promoting good will between students and teachers.

District Rally Highlights FHA Year

To highlight a year of busy activity the Future Homemakers of NHHS hosted the District Rally for the FHA groups from all of Southeastern North Carolina. Putting up decorations, preparing refreshments, and organizing entertainment kept the club busy for weeks. During Christmas they prepared a basket of groceries and presents for a needy family. A project of the club this fall was the selling of costume jewelry to raise money for socials and projects. This spring the members of the club sold different types of cook books in the community.

Bible Club Members Plan a Sing-in

Bible Club began the year with a sing-in which took place at Wrightsville Beach. While eating homemade ice cream prospective members for Bible Club from Hoggard and NHHS sat around a glowing campfire and sang a variety of guitar-accompanied songs. As a climax to the evening of fellowship, Gene Snelling, a chaplain stationed at Fort Bragg, spoke on one's relationship with God.

Government Club Sponsors Essay Contest

In November the Government Club entered a prize-winning float in the Homecoming Parade. On Christmas Day a delegation from the club presented Lake Waccamaw's Boys' Home with over two hundred books and a twenty dollar check. In the spring the club sponsored an essay contest on the War in Vietnam. Winning essays, both a pro and a con view of the subject, appeared in the April edition of the Wildcat. Besides prizes, winners also received credit in their English courses. Providing the money for the prizes and a club party, the club charged a dollar entry fee for each essay. Other fund-raising projects included a car-wash and a bake-sale.

Discussing plans for the essay contest are: Secretary Dena Ennis, Treasurer Eleanor Swart, Club Reporter Vickie Davis, Sergeant-at-Arms Don West, Parliamentarian Becky Coleman, Program Chairman Bobby Webster, and President William Rodgers.

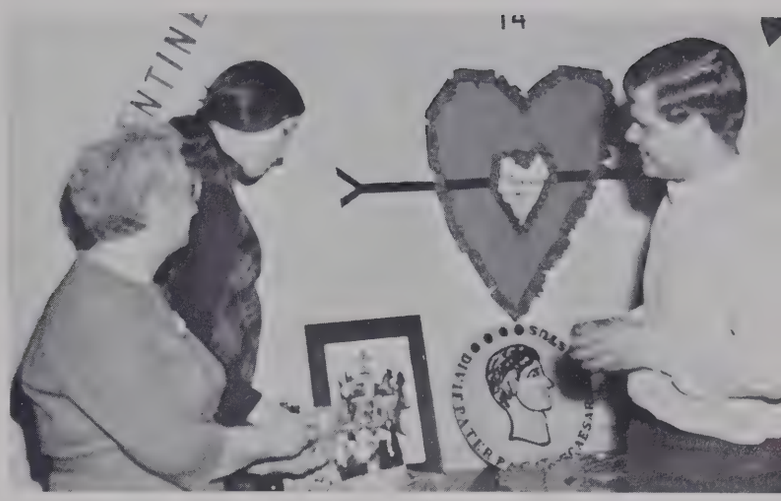

Loading books to deliver to the Lake Waccamaw Boys' Home are: Mike Todd, Richard Epps, Jerry Hobbs, and Georgiana Bradshaw.

Latin Club Attends Junior Classical League

Latin Club members climaxed the year by attending the March Junior Classical League Convention in Chapel Hill. Here they attended educational and informative classes concerning mythology, costumes, foods, and holidays of the Roman Empire. In attending these classes members of Latin Club learned how to apply the ancient language of the Romans to a modern world. Members also took part in the state JCL elections while representing the Wilmington Chapter of the State Latin Clubs. As Christmas approached, Latin Club members planned and presented a tea for all faculty and administration members. In terminating an eventful and prosperous year, Latin Club held its yearly banquet, the decor traditional Roman Style.

Distributive Education Clubs of America held its installation service at a dinner meeting at the King Neptune Restaurant in October. Winning the first football game, which they played against VICA, introduced the successful year for the fifty-three members of the club. At the New Hanover County Fair the students were first place winners in the booth contest. Their exhibit, the cycle of distribution of the "Southern Yam" from soil to consumer, earned them publicity in a state-wide magazine "Trade 'N Print." For Christmas the students gave a party in the Student Union for underprivileged children. To thank those who make distributive education possible, DECA had its Employer-Employee Banquet in the spring.

Twenty-seven students make up Cooperative Office Occupations, one of NHHS's working clubs. In the traditional spirit of leap year, these students sponsored a Sadie Hawkins Dance for the student body. Presents, Christmas decorations, and Santa Claus entertained the children of Nesbitt Courts Kindergarten during a party presented in December. By holding bake sales and car washes, the club financed these activities. At the end of the year, COO members attended the annual Employer-Employee Banquet designed to express the appreciation of the Students to the Employers for cooperation and good will.

Members Play Scrabble and Bingo in French

Language week in April climaxed the year for the French Club. In co-operation with the Spanish Club, the French Club members placed bilingual prayer cards and the French and Spanish flags on all the tables in the cafeteria. Other features of the week included posters placed in the halls and a display of books in foreign languages in the showcase in the library lobby. Prior to this in December the club learned Christmas songs in French and caroled at the homes of some of the faculty members.

Throughout the year many members enjoyed playing scrabble, bingo and other games in French.

Blam! A good jerk of the ribbons on the Christmas piñata brought squeals of delight as the nursery children scrambled for the scattered candy. Spanish Club members transformed their December meeting into a firsthand experience with foreign customs for the children. In addition, interesting guest speakers were often on the meeting agenda—such as, Mrs. Kitty Brunjes, who explained the World Academy Study and Travel Program. This non-profit organization offered to club members an opportunity to visit Spain in June of 1969. Members also entered a colorful float in the NHHS Homecoming Parade and participated in Foreign Language Week.

NHS Provides Tutoring Aid for Students

On December fifth the National Honor Society inducted thirty students in a solemn candle-tapping ceremony. In March the members held a tea which recognized students who made the Honor Roll first semester. On the last week-end in March, the club sent delegates to the National Honor Society State Convention, held in Burlington. To provide funds for the trip, the club held a bridge benefit. Throughout the year the club sponsored a coaching center offering students tutoring aid in their difficult subjects. Volunteer coaches worked under the direction of NHS members during their study halls.

Coaches Emphasize Superb Conditioning

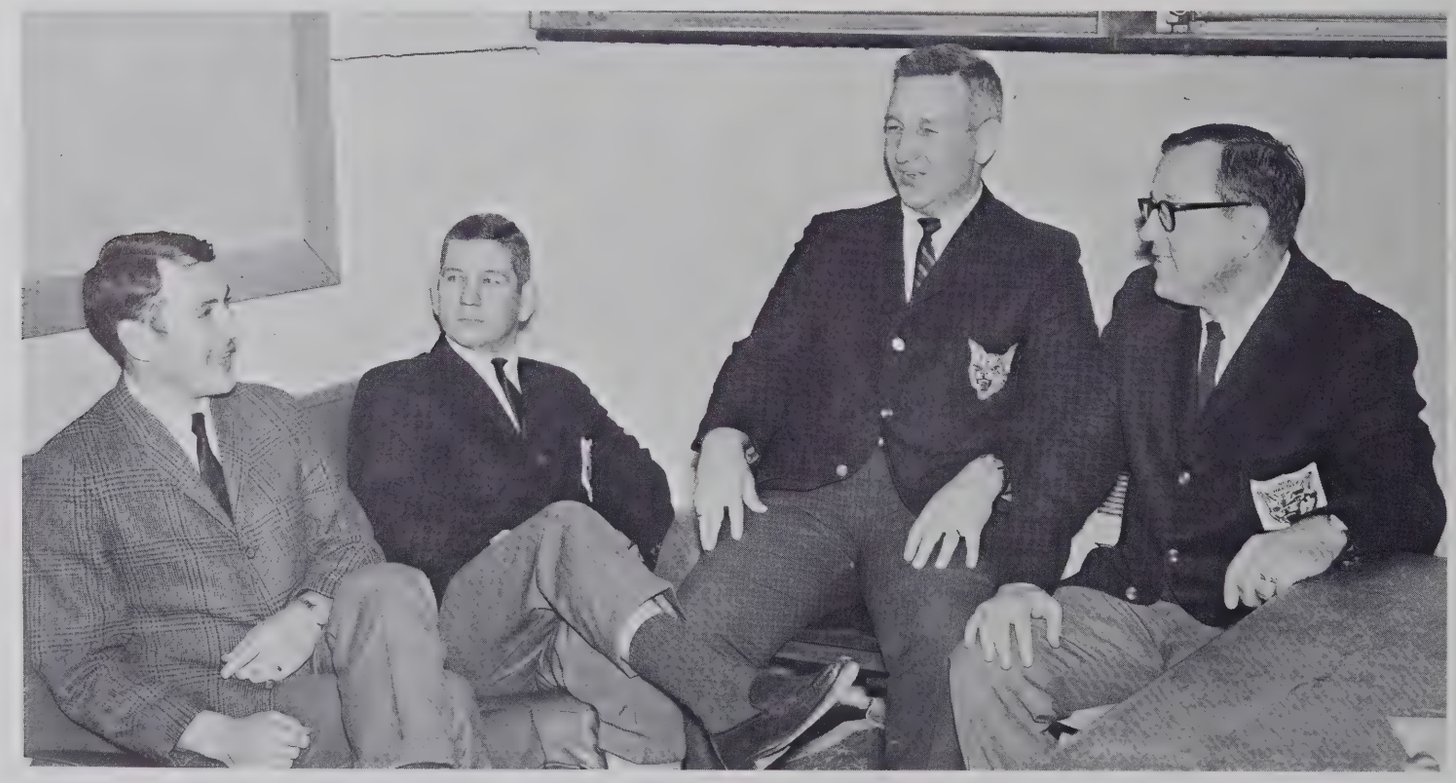

Coaches Pete Crane and Glen Sasser took over the football team this year.

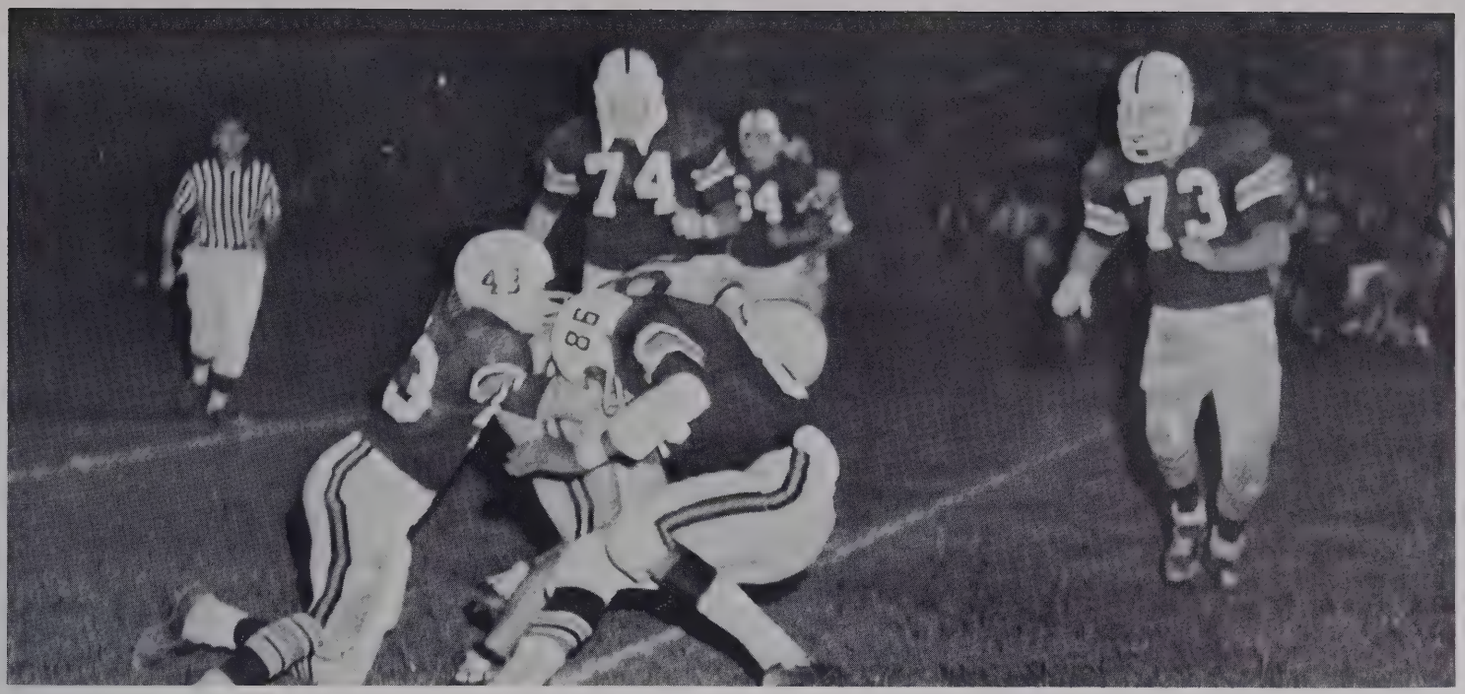

New golf coaches are Paul Bergen and Rick Stuart.

This was a year of renovation for several Wildcat teams as they received new coaches and new coaching techniques. To the football team came Glen Sasser as head coach and Pete Crane as his assistant. Sasser brought with him from Fayetteville a novel style of play and practice. Replacing Jap Davis as golf coach, as Sasser and Crane succeeded him as football mentor, are Rick Stuart and Paul Bergen. The other addition to the staff at NHHS is our new JV basketball coach, Ed Miastowski. Bill and Buck Hardee continue at the head of the baseball team as does Toddy Fennell for the basketball team.

Sparkling Defense Characterizes First Games

Russell Lee deflects the short pass at the last moment.

Sporting a new look, the 1968 Wildcat eleven took the field with renewed optimism. Most noticeable change in New Hanover's football program was in the offensive unit. As new head mentor, Glenn Sasser made extensive use of the "I" and "I Pro" formations. The powerful setup proved devastating against New Hanover's first three opponents as the 'Cats amassed a total of eighty-seven points in their first three outings. Yet, equally important, an impregnable defense held the opposition scoreless. Climaxing this streak of brilliant defensive play was a superlative performance against Rocky Mount as the Wildcats arrested the Blackbird offense to a pitiful total of thirty-six yards. One of the most satisfying wins of the season came during this period when the gridders ended a five-year drought against Raleigh Broughton by demolishing the 'Caps thirty-eight to nothing.

New Hanover faced their first decisive test of the season against Durham. It was the Bulldog's night, as they coupled a devastating pass attack with an unyielding defense to hand New Hanover their first setback of the season. Added to the gloom of defeat were injuries to two key linebackers. These mishaps affected the hitherto sparkling defensive play of the team for the rest of the season.

New Wildcat Offense

One of the major upsets of the season occurred when a scrappy Goldsboro delegation blasted the 'Cats thirty-three to twelve. Needing little encouragement, the team regained their winning poise against cross town rival Hoggard. The gridders set a fine precedent by handing the Vikings a decisive loss. Fresh from their satisfying win over Hoggard, the Wildcat eleven bowled over Raleigh-Enloe in their best offensive effort of the year. It proved to be the last win for the gridders as the defense was unable to contain the lightening backfields of Wilson, Fayetteville, and Jacksonville.

Andre Mallette was this year's recipient of the Wallace I. West Sportsmanship Award. Elected Most Valuable Player by his teammates was John Nixon. Nixon was superlative in this season's action as he snagged ten touchdown passes and ran one punt back for another. He was also the efficient safety on defense who accounted for more than his fair share of tackles.

'Kittens Gain Experience Against Varsity Foes

Coach Hal Stout faced a serious setback at the start of the 1968 junior varsity football season. With only a few veterans of the junior high program, the team faced a demanding schedule, including three varsity teams as well as regular junior varsity opponents. The three varsity games ended in defeat, but not without the acquisition of valuable experience. In junior varsity competition, however, the team posted a fine record. Traditional rival Jacksonville handed the 'Kittens their only two junior varsity losses. Otherwise, the Wildkittens posted a perfect record in "B" team competition, ending the season with a fitting victory over the Hoggard junior varsity. Running from the "shotgun" formation, the gridders amassed a total of a hundred and twenty-six points on offense. Defense was erratic as it experienced a number of alterations throughout the campaign.

'Cats Take Conference, Lose Playoffs

NHHS fielded a fine team in its second year of inter-school soccer competition. It was an experienced group, most of the players being veterans of the previous year plus summer play and practice. Four games with Camp LeJeune constituted the entire regular season conference schedule, but the Wildcats played numerous "practice" games with Wilmington College, Southeastern Community College, and teams off of foreign ships docked at the State Port Authority complex.

Against LeJeune the 'Cats had a 4-1 record, beating them four consecutive times during the regular season. Due to outdated rules concerning playoffs, the Wildcats were forced to play Camp LeJeune a fifth time in order to be considered eligible for the state finals. In this final contest NHHS was defeated by a score of 1-0, the score coming in double overtime on a call which gave LeJeune a penalty kick.

NHHS has two fine coaches who were responsible for the 'Cats going as far as they did. They are Jay King, a teacher at the school, and Alex Weide, a draftsman at a local engineering firm. These men gave up much of their free time to help ready the team to help for league play. They also arranged the games with the ships' crews. These games were enjoyable experiences for the team, especially visiting on board the ship after the game. Through the season the 'Cats got quite a taste of German and Italian foods, drink, and culture.

Jim Howarth has the decided advantage on this near pin.

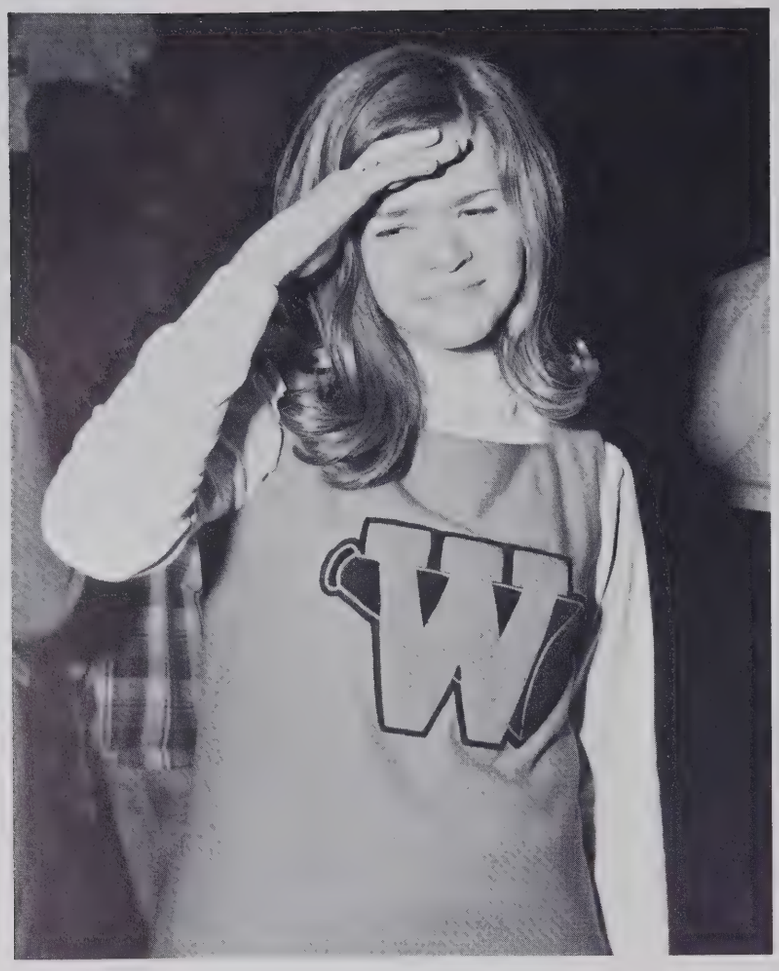

Although the 1968-69 wrestling squad posted only three team wins this season, the overall program experienced its best year since its formation. The move of the practice site from Tileston to New Hanover, the infusion of new conditioning and vigor to the program by Coach Pete Crane, and the continued invaluable strategy offered by local enthusiast Harry Hale all contributed to a better year for wrestling at New Hanover.

Although the team dropped its matches with perennial wrestling powers, Jacksonville and West Carteret, these matches proved to be priceless teachers as the Wildcats came on strong in post-season tournament action. In the Eastern 4A conference tournament, the team finished a strong third and finished fourth in a field of twenty at the sectionals. Senior grappler Jimmy Creech took first place in both tournaments in his weight class and thus is the first Wildcat wrestler ever to gain first place honors in tournament competition. Along with Jimmy went four other representatives of the squad to the State tournament.

Cross country track started out with a strong field of runners in the fall of the year. Before their first meet, however, several runners were disqualified because of academics and another because of injuries. These misfortunes started the trend which led the harriers to a disappointing record of six losses and no victories.

However, most team members are underclassmen and gained much valuable experience.

Spring track experienced a revitalized season this year. Vigorous conditioning and new-felt team pride resulted in a fine record in addition to a general upbuilding of the program. The field events of the shot-put and discus were especially strong, with Charles Ostrand and Andre Mallette consistently placing in every meet. Sprinter John White led the team in the shorter distances which picked up strength as the season progressed. At the last of the season the technical events of relays and hurdles were mastered for a few wins in this area.

'Cats Win EC4A Regular Season Crown;

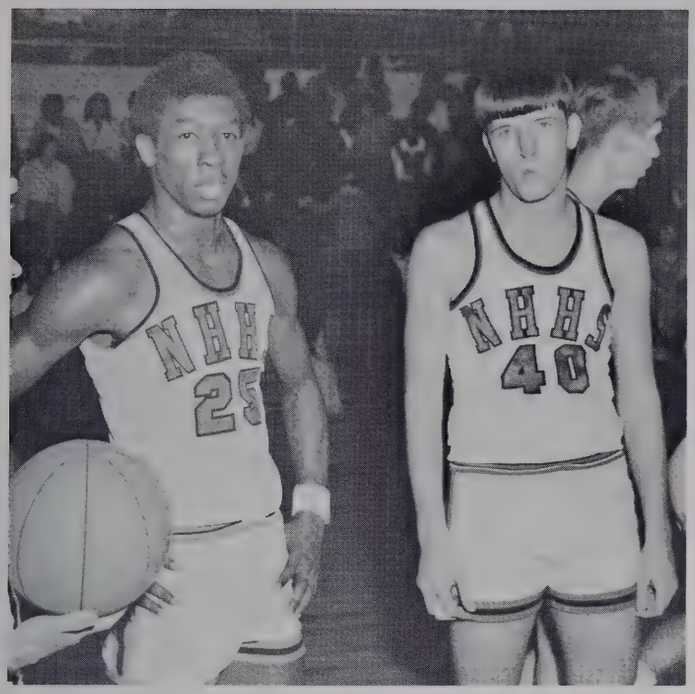

The 1968-69 New Hanover Varsity Basketball team swept to their second consecutive EC4A regular season crown. They started out the season with an impressive victory over J. T. Hoggard, the cross-town rival. The Wildcat team played the first two games without the services of John Nixon, an all-state guard for the past two seasons. The 'Cats then went on a rampage, beating Wilson, Rocky Mount, and Raleigh Enloe, considered a tough team, by scores of 60-42, 72-45, and 66-48.

Over the Christmas holidays, the 'Cats held their second annual Holiday Tournament at Brogden Hall. The four teams competing were New Hanover, J. T. Hoggard, Asheville, and Burlington. The Wildcat five began the tournament by nipping Asheville, 61-60; New Hanover ended the tournament by beating Burlington, 59-50.

The Wildcat team then came back to school and started conference play again by whipping Raleigh Broughton and Goldsboro. The New Hanover five then suffered its only regular season defeat, coming at the hands of a tough Durham team, 47-45. Later on in the season the Wildcats experienced a very bad scare from Jacksonville when they beat the Cardinals by only one point. Oddly enough, the Wildcats then breezed by the Durham team that had beaten them once before, 62-45. The Wildcats finished the regular season by defeating Fayetteville Sanford and Jacksonville. The Wildcats finished the regular season with a 19-1 record.

Fail To Keep State Championship

In the Eastern 4A conference tournament, the Wildcats beat Jacksonville and Raleigh Broughton to gain the right to meet Durham in the finals. As Durham had done once before, they beat the Wildcats by a score of forty-nine to forty-eight. The Wildcats lost the tournament but still had a berth in the state championship at Greensboro. In the first game, the Wildcats met Asheville, the same team they had beaten by one point in the Holiday Tournament. This time the story was not the same because Asheville beat the 'Cats by a score of 51-41. The 'Cats led the first three quarters of the game but fell behind in the fourth quarter to loose to a very strong Asheville team. The Wildcats finished the season with a 21-3 record. Regular starters for New Hanover were John Nixon, Rusty Caines, Clifton Herring, David Sandlin, and Thurman Grady. Others who frequently started were Mike Wheeler and Bill Nemaragut. At the end of the season Rusty Caines received the most valuable player award.

Clif Herring shows the excellent form he used to score consistently all season.

Wildkittens Display Strong School Spirit

The New Hanover Junior Varsity team saw many close games slip out of their hands while compiling a 5-15 record for the '68-'69 season. Lack of height, depth, and the ability to cope with mounting opposition caused the team to lose many ball games in the fourth quarter. The Wildkitten five won a sweet victory over crosstown Hoggard and then lost to Charlotte's South Mecklenburg club to start the season off. Then came two more non-conference games, the first being a victory over Southport's junior varsity team and then a slim victory of 60-59 over the Southport varsity team.

Next the Wildkittens dropped six straight games, all coming at the hands of the tough Eastern 4A Conference foes. The 'Kittens lost to Wilson, Rocky Mount, Raleigh Broughton, Raleigh Enloe, Goldsboro, and Durham. After this series of defeats the team rallied to a comeback and won a game over Fayetteville-Sanford, 44-35. Victory, however, was short-lived because the Wildkittens again slumped and lost four straight games. The Eastern 4A Conference foes—Wilson, Rocky Mount, Raleigh Broughton, and Raleigh Enloe—again nipped the Wildkittens, with two of the games being lost by only two points. Once more the 'Kittens felt the surge of a victory over a tough Jacksonville squad, but once again they dropped the last four games of the season to Goldsboro, Durham, Fayetteville, and to Jacksonville in their final play of the season.

Sparse Wildkitten victories came throughout the season by hard fought games which gained them valuable experience.

Young Golf Team Posts Erratic Record

Harry Martin blasts out of the difficult lie.

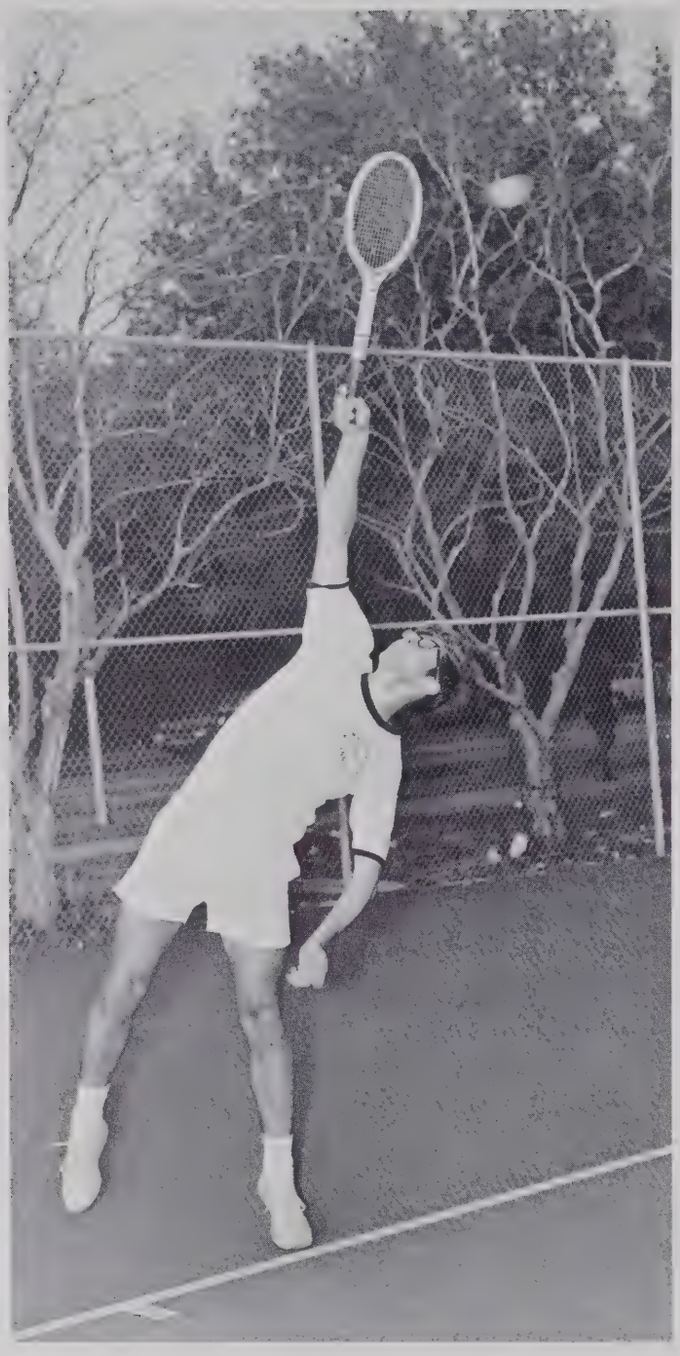

Golf experienced an average season this year. Illness to leading golfer Mac McKeithan at the start of the season affected early play of the entire team. Characteristic of the season was a constant rivalry with tough crosstown power Hoggard. This rivalry usually ended with New Hanover's placing a strong second behind Hoggard in the usual field of five teams in a match. New Hanover had numerous outstanding young golfers who gained steadiness in seasonal action as well as in tournament competition.

After Second Place Finish Last Year

In 1967-68 the Wildcats took the EC4A top position with a 10-0 conference record. Overall, the team was 15-2 and finished second in the state behind Burlington. During the summer team members played in various tournaments and acted as instructors in a tennis clinic held on the NHHS courts. A boys' "B" team of selected junior high players was also developed, adding to the progress of the local tennis program.

In the fall, once school began, the tempo of the year long practice picked up as the players began to work out as a team. Top returning letterman include Bill Freyer (19-6), Joe Murchison (20-6), Ed Warshauer (20-3), Herb McKim (21-5), and Jack Swart (20-0). Challenge matches determine the ranking of the players. Doubles teams begin early in the school year to play together to ready themselves for a long, tough season in March. The schedule this year includes matches with the UNC freshmen and the East Carolina varsity leading up to the Eastern Regionals and the State finals.

Wildcats Compile 15-1 Record;

New Hanover High School, with one of the strongest teams in recent years, captured the EC4A title with a 15-2 overall record—11-1 in conference play. Conference superiority was attained late in the season when the 'Cats defeated the Wilson Cyclones 4-3 after losing to them earlier in the season. This victory came on the strength of a homerun by Hook Nixon and two run-producing errors by Wilson.

The Wildcats' entire season was epitomized by the mid-season match-up with cross-town rivals, Hoggard. NHHS devastated the Vikings in a 12-1 farce. The lone Hoggard score came in the seventh inning on two scratch singles and was all the Vikings had to show for their afternoon of play, while giving up 9 of the 12 Wildcat runs in the first two innings. New Hanover ended its season with a disappointing 3-1 defeat at the hands of perennial foe Greensboro Grimsley in the first game of the state playoffs.

Season totals reveal the explosive offense and stingy defense the 'Cats employed. They scored 106 runs while giving up 23, with 14 of the 23 being unearned runs. New Hanover was a youthful but experienced team, with only 4 senior players. Lost from the squad were catcher Stanley Sneeden, pitcher-third baseman Jim Rhodes, outfielder Roger Frankoff, and third baseman Steve Brooks.

'Kittens Gain Experience Toward Varsity Play

The NHHS "B" team, utilizing the services of four junior pitchers, compiled an 11-1-1 record last season. Barney Lewis did the majority of the JV pitching, working with the other pitchers in a rotation system which divided their time between the 'Kittens and the varsity.

Goldsboro was the only EC4A team the Wildkittens faced in a season whose perfection was marred only by an error-filled loss to Camp Lejeune. NHHS took the 'Quakes 11-4 and 1-0 in two Saturday morning clashes.

The first game with Topsail proved to be the highest scoring game for the 'Kittens since their 33-0 defeat of Leland the year before. In this game, which quickly turned into a rout, it was not unusual for a player to get 5 hits in 5 times at bat, and for the team to send 15 to 18 men to the plate in a single inning. NHHS ended its season as it began it, with a crushing win over Dixon.

With such a small team, the 'Kittens hope to be battling it out next year (1969) for starting positions on the varsity.

On almost any Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock a number of GAA members can be seen scattered about from the girls' gym to the tennis court across Market Street to enjoy competitive sports together.

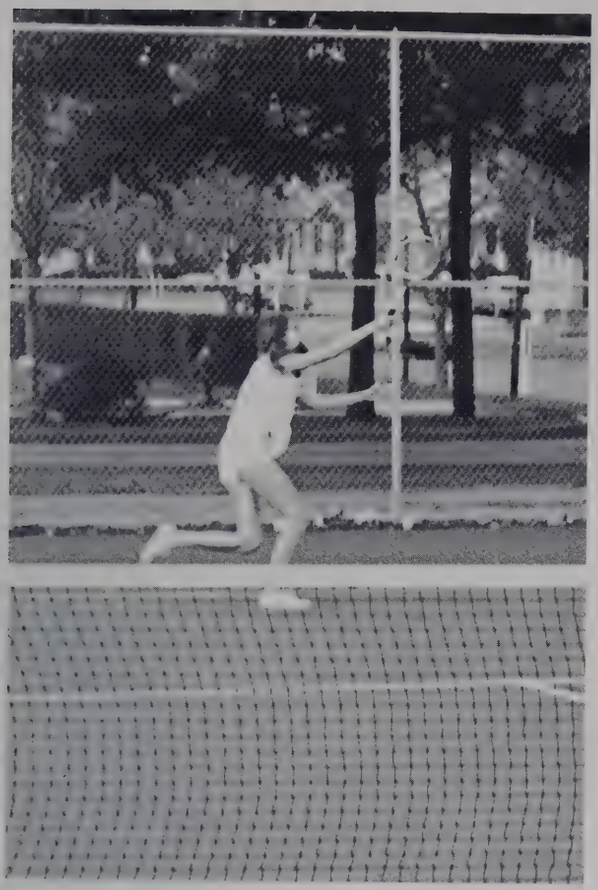

Continuous tournaments, featuring a varied sports program for girls, provides interest and enthusiasm for the membership from September to May. In the spring awards go to winning girls and teams for their achievements.

Though limited in number because of transportation difficulties, the group proved none the less lively, and the by-products of wholesome rivalry-character and good sportsmanship—more than compensated for any obstacles encountered.

Cape Fear Rifles

Known in years past for their weaponary drill, the Cape Fear Rifles again proved themselves worthy of this recognition by demonstrating their skill in parades across SENC. In the fall the Cape Fear Rifles put on an exhibition with the Hoggard Drill Team at Williston Junior High. During Veterans Day they performed in Warsaw. Christmas parades included Whiteville, Burgaw, Wallace, and Clinton.

In Macon, Georgia, the Third Army held the annual drill team meet for the teams in the Southeastern United States, in which the Cape Fear Rifles participated.

Performing in parades and giving demonstrations were only two of the drill team's duties. Every Monday and Friday mornings they, with the Color Guard conducted the flag-raising ceremonies on the front campus.

Commanding the Cape Fear Rifles this year was Cdt. Capt. Alan French with Cdt. 1st Lt. David Griffin as Executive Officer.

Marching with the Cape Fear Rifles in all their parades, the Color Guard, headed by Cdt. M/Sgt. Stephen Duke and Cdt. SFC Daniel Kuebrich, Co-Captain, battled the winds to keep the colors proudly waving.

Keeping records of all the cadets and issuing ribbons to cadets who earned them, Sgt. Major Lloyd C. Soles acted as advisor to the Color Guard.

In charge of the Cape Fear Rifles and traveling with them in all their parades, SFC Lee Brown also acted as TAC. NCO for Alpha and Bravo Companies.

Besides being in charge of the Rifle Team S/Sgt. James Mauldin was also TAC. NCO for Charlie and Delta Companies. After retiring on 1 December of last year, S/Sgt. Mauldin decided to stay on throughout the rest of the year.

After an uncertain start the Reserve Officers' Training Corps sharpened with determination to retain its Honor Unit rating, which the United States Third Army has awarded this unit for thirty-one consecutive years. As Battalion Commander, Cdt. Lt. Col. James H. Carter had the responsibility to whip the two hundred seventy member cadet corps into shape. Since a single man can better control a small unit at a time, company commanders and platoon leaders taught the cadets how to march and drill with weapons. MT-1 cadets also had to be shown the correct position of the brass on their uniforms.

Somehow the officers of the Battalion completed the impossible task by ROTC Sponsors' Night, an annual event which occurs at one of the last home football games. During half-time

Following the March 27 Federal inspection by the Third Army, the cadet corps prepared for the final big events of the school year. First came the Cape Fear Sword presentation by The Citadel to the most outstanding senior cadet. The Azalea Parade, where the nearly perfect marching had to become perfect, and later Honors Days for all cadets earning high-ranking ribbons and medals closed out the ROTC school year. As the lower classmen left the drill field, they looked back, hoping for a platoon, a company, or even the battalion when they return.

Hanover High School Forward

Leading New Hanover High School this year as principal and head administrator was Mr. John J. Scott. He had the tremendous task of planning the master schedule, plus many other duties ranging from public relations to dealing with problems of students and teachers. Planning with student government was also a mammoth job for Mr. Scott.

Mr. Norman Kimbrough, associate principal and new to the administrative staff this year at New Hanover, found his responsibilities many. Scheduling of special assembly programs, preparation of publicity for school events, handling of disciplinary problems, and helping with schedule changes were all under his jurisdiction.

Checking on daily attendance, issuing special admission slips or requests for excusal from school, and handling certain cases of discipline were some of the tasks of Mr. Fred Capps, assistant principal and dean of boys, and Mrs. Joyce Weathers, dean of girls. With an enrollment of over 2,300 students this year both were kept quite busy.

Registrar for New Hanover this year was Miss Elizabeth Montgomery. Included in her duties were supervision of achievement tests and SAT's, transcripts, records, honor roll listings and general supervision of all recorded school data. She was assisted by Mrs. Reid, her secretary.

Helping students make preparations for college or a vocational career or just helping work out personal problems were all responsibilities of the guidance counselors—Mrs. Louise Dobson, Sophomores; Mrs. Evelyn Doughty, Juniors; and Mrs. Barbara Stanley, Seniors.

Chairman of English - Humanities

Mrs. Margaret Geary took over as head of the English and Humanities Department this year. Also new to the department were ten teachers, one of whom has since been replaced by Mr. Frank Shepard and by Mr. Paul Bergen.

Specialties of the English Department, which has twenty-two teachers, included a reading development program, an independent study program, dramatics, speech, and journalism. Mrs. Betty Clark, reading development specialist, met daily with two classes.

Humanities courses varied subject matter—correlating literature, communication skills, history, social sciences, and the fine arts. In conjunction with this study, Mrs. Jane Price, vocal music director, spoke to one humanities class and to one English class on the topic "Development of American Music." During her talk Mrs. Price showed how, from the Renaissance through the Romantic periods, music reflected the life of those particular eras. In January a team of six visiting teachers from South Nash High School of Bailey, N. C., observed classes in the Humanities.

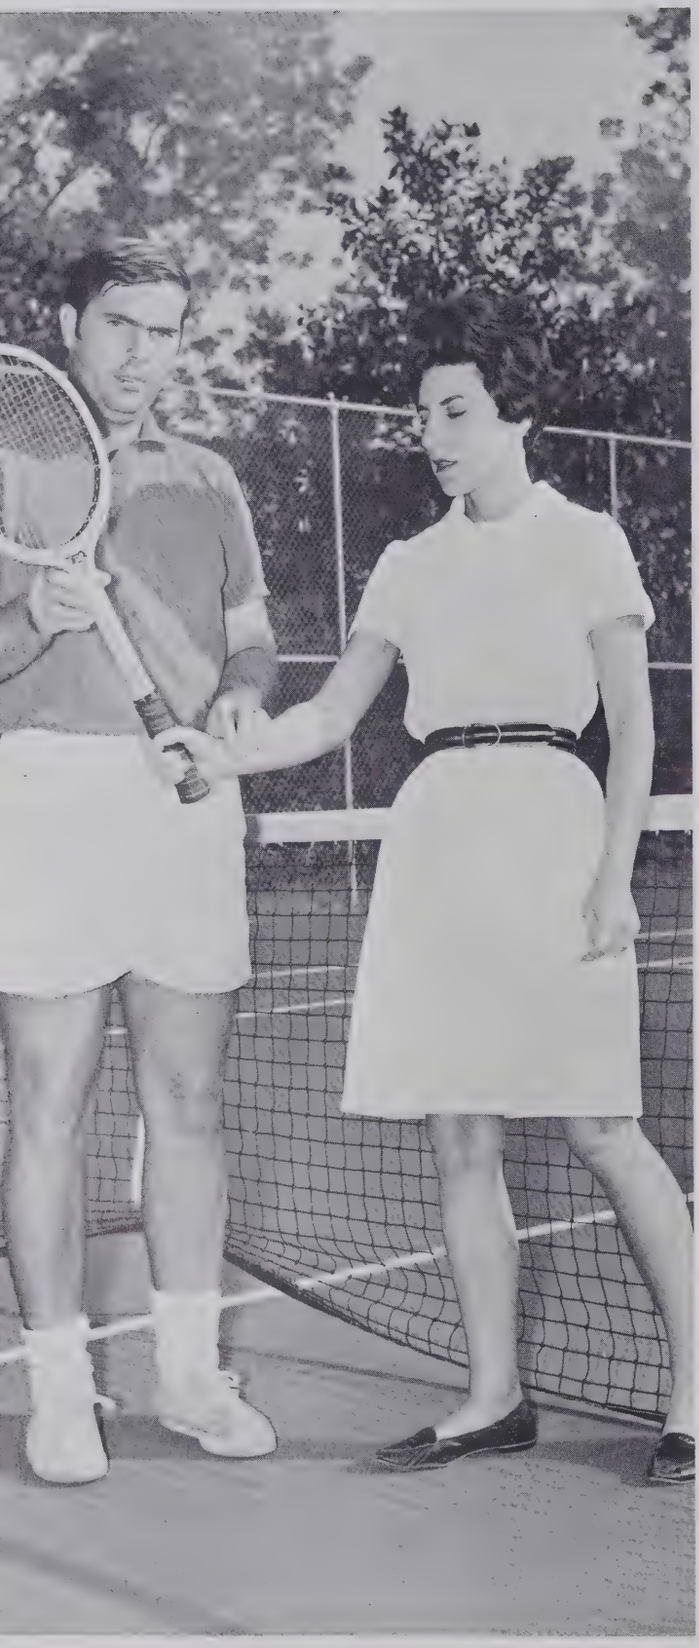

Several English and Humanities teachers chose students for the independent study program.

Math Demands Concentration, Thought

Several new teachers joined the math faculty this year at New Hanover High School. Mrs. Helen Newsome, formerly a teacher at Williston Senior High, Algebra I and II; Miss Nancy Usrey, Consumer Math and Geometry; Miss Janie Luther, a fifth-year teacher from the University of North Carolina, Consumer Math; Miss Beatrice Bolton, Consumer Math; and Mr. Lawrence Hiatt, Consumer Math, completed the total roster of twelve teachers in the Math Department.

This year the department purchased new calculus books for use by students in the advanced math classes. Consumer Math classes received new materials on special interest topics from the State Department of Instruction.

A total of forty-nine classes this year with an enrollment of 1,378 students devoted many hours to the goal of mathematics, which is to encourage students to think.

Mrs. Helen Newsome, Algebra I and II, and Miss Mary Luther, Consumer Math, consult each other about a student.

Miss Ruth Galloway, Geometry, demonstrates to Richard Hurley, the intersection of a dihedral angle.

Mrs. Nancy Horton, Head of the Math Department, Advanced Math, Advanced Algebra and Trigonometry, shows her school spirit by attending pep rallies regularly, often with her children, Holly and Terrell.

Miss Octavia Smith, Algebra II, shows Diane Tucker a graph as Mrs. Nancy Usrey, Consumer Math and Geometry, consults the daily bulletin.

Girl watching is a favorite past time of Mr. William Mangum, Algebra I, Advanced Algebra, and Trigonometry, and Mr. James Hiatt, Jr., Consumer Math.

Miss Beatrice Bolton, Consumer Math, teaches the fundamentals of mathematics to Marlene Shain, Sandy Weathersbee, and Lee Garriss.

Mrs. Louise Turner, Geometry, explains a geometric figure to Colonel William King, Algebra I and Geometry, and student Kathy McKay.

Mrs. Estelle LeGwin, Chemistry and Research Science, and Miss Catherine Emmart, Chemistry, leave school after a long day.

Mr. John Brunjes, Physics and Algebra II, demonstrates to Miss Florence Johnson, Biology, how to generate static electricity.

Mr. John Grotegen, Science; Mrs. Margaret Bond, Mathematics; and Mrs. Emily Laughlin, Biology, admire the simple beauty of New Hanover's campus as they walk under the breezeway.

Mrs. Dell Borneman, Head of the Science Department, Chemistry, Advanced Biology and Research Science, shows an animal cell slide to Henry Band on the bioseope.

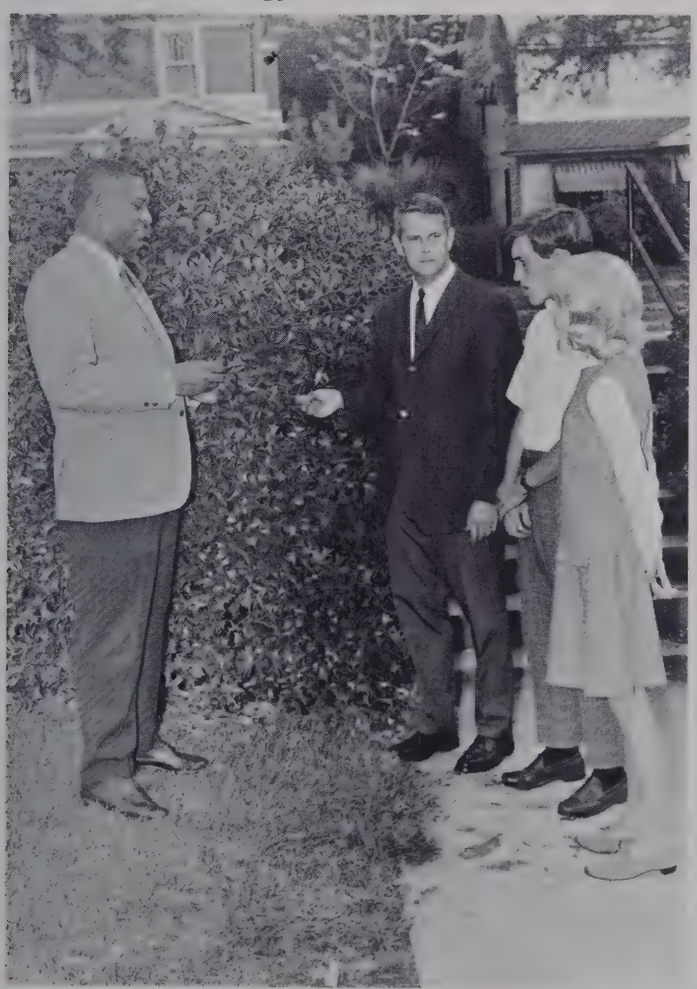

Curiosity and Exploration Make Science Real

This year the Science Department of New Hanover High School had two physics, ten chemistry, eleven physical science, twenty-three first year biology, three advanced biology and one research science class. Teachers new to the staff for this school year were Mr. Bellizi, Biology I; Mr. Crane, Physical Science; Mr. Moore, Physical Science and Chemistry; and Miss Florence Johnson, Biology I. An enrollment of approximately 1,300 students, well over half of the student body, filled the schedules of all twelve science teachers.

A look into Mrs. Borneman's room reveals the neat shelving of many new research books and supplementary material available for use in all science classes. Also this year the department received a new movie projector, a slide projector, and an overhead projector.

This year's science class took several field trips, one of the most interesting being a visit to New Hanover Memorial Hospital made by the Advanced Biology classes. Continuous projects of the highest caliber for the second successful year came from the research science class.

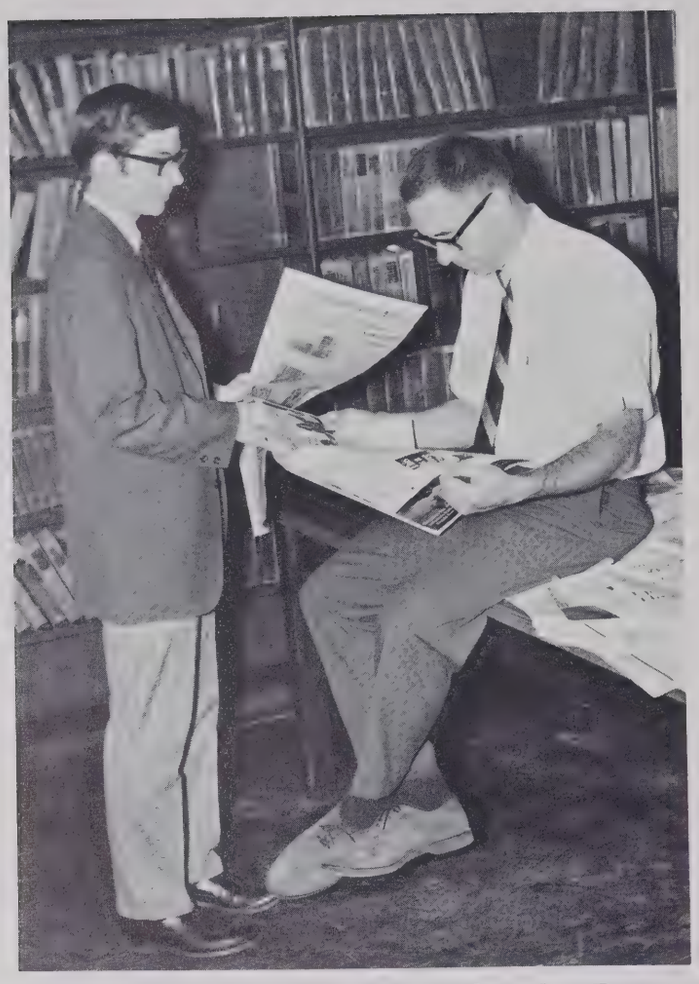

Larry Thornton and Carol Rouse examine leaves with Mr. Isaac Moore, Chemistry and Physical Science, and Mr. Hal Stout, Biology.

Mr. Donald Dickens, Physical Science, and Mr. Thomas Tuttle, discuss the advantages of a sports car.

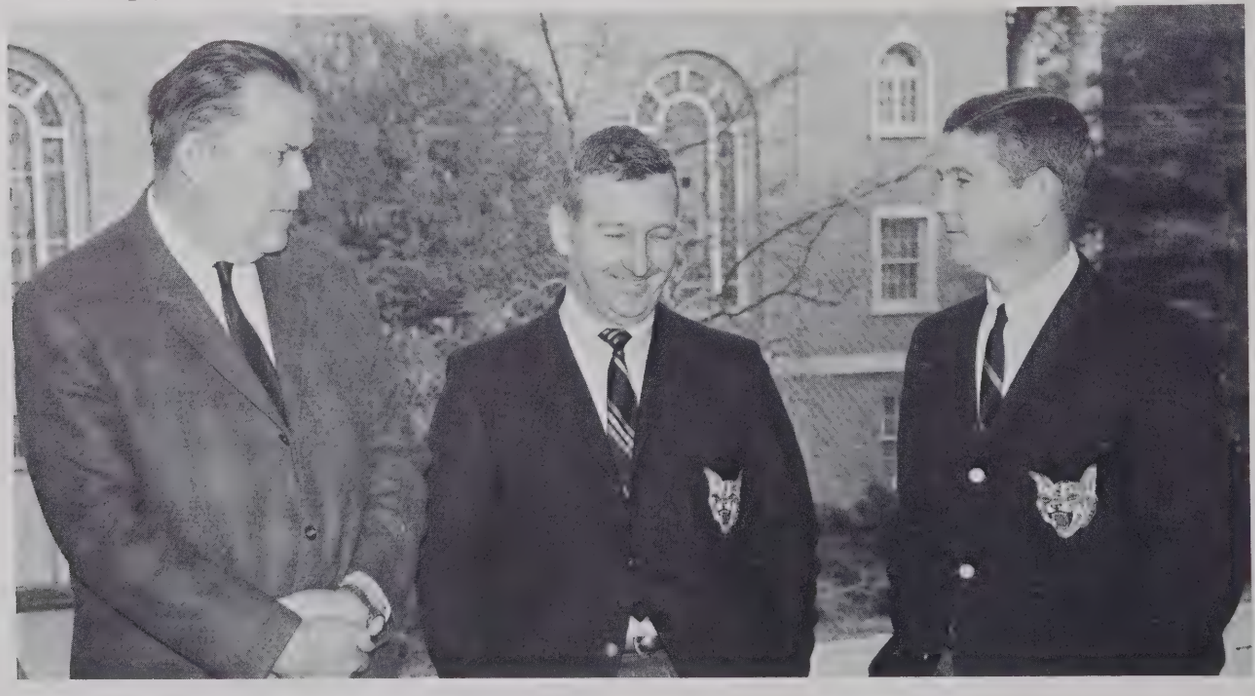

Election Issues

Mr. William Bergeron, Head of Social Studies Department, Government, and Mr. Decatur Rodgers, U. S. History, Economics, pour over newspapers for articles of interest.

Since this was the year of a national election, the Social Studies Department had plenty of material for more meaningful and more colorful classes. Many of the 1,400-plus students enrolled in social studies put themselves in the shoes of the politicians by giving speeches, holding debates, and conducting mock elections. Held just before the Presidential election, a school-wide election, with all homerooms participating, produced results disagreeing with the nation's final vote. These elections helped students learn more about the workings in the Senate and the House of Representatives. Special emphasis was placed on the Electoral College. Aided by the elections, the teachers found their classes easier to plan, the students being more cooperative and attentive. This year the department hosted for the classes several different and entertaining speakers who expressed ideas in their lectures that gave the students insight as to the differences and similarities of the political parties in the city and nation. Several students, many desiring an even more active part in the elections, worked with the local election boards helping them tally votes. One of their main jobs was going from precinct to precinct to collect votes. This helped the students learn about the elections locally.

Mr. James Meadows, Government, Mr. George Hardee, U. S. History, and Mr. William Hardee, Government, swap jokes between classes.

Spark Interest

New Methods of Learning Attract Students

With several teachers added to the staff this year, the Foreign Language Department developed new and original ideas for both students and faculty. Used more than ever before, the Language Lab—not to mention the numerous tape recorders, record players, and movie projectors in the classrooms—encouraged personal participation. Individually, the students poured over foreign magazines, newspapers, and flash cards. Many classes learned to play games such as "Bingo" in the language studied. The learning of various types of songs and poems and the observance of National Language Week promoted even more interest. The Spanish, French and Latin Clubs, formed at the first of the year, were much more active due to more student participation. For the adventurous, there were various recipes to be tried. One of the largest goals of the Foreign Language Department for the year was to invite several exchange students to come live in students' homes around Wilmington and to attend classes at New Hanover High.

Mrs. Elizabeth West, Head of Foreign Language Department, French II, III, IV, reviews the conjugation of verbs with student Julie Spivey.

Miss Carolyn Bannerman, Spanish I, U. S. History and Mrs. Lucie Fryar, French I, Latin I, Latin II, instruct their classes in the use of the Language Lab.

Mrs. Janie Ports, Spanish I, Spanish II, sees the place in Cuba where Miss Maria Gonzalez, Spanish II, III, IV, was born.

Visits to Other Cities Inspire Many

Mrs. Jane Price, Vocal Music Director, explains warm-up exercises to Tommy Smith and Charles Small.

Yvonne Newton, Mary Jo Lee, Robert Tatum, and Kay Register practice reading a play, under the supervision of Mrs. Nila Chamberlain, Drama, Speech, and English III.

Madrigals, ballads, musical instruments, dramatic readings and plays—these all held meaning for New Hanover students who participated in the diversified cultural arts program. Eighty band students with two to six years of experience have participated in civic affairs and concerts throughout the year. Visits to Durham for a football game, to Greenville for a political rally and the annual band clinic, and participation in parades in Wilmington and Jacksonville have highlighted the year. Both vocal and band classes presented two major concerts. All of the vocal music groups have enlarged this year, with the addition of an eighteen member Boys' Chorus. Folk, popular, and sacred music made up the programs for performances on television and to civic groups, and for activities on the state and district levels. Trips to the workshop at Chapel Hill and to regional and state drama festivals inspired students interested in dramatic performances. Student directors worked on two of the six plays presented to the public and rehearsed for statewide competition.

Mr. William McAdams, Band, Music Theory, explains a passage of the score to Mary Huband, David Lanier, and Ray Mathis.

New Teachers, New Curriculum Add to NHHS

Mr. Miles Higgins, Commercial Art, explains ink drawings to Mary Savage, Tracy Gore, Joyce LaMarch, Sue Nussman, and Donald Nixon.

Red, blue, green, purple, orange and yellow blended together into an organized picture of unity, as the odor of paint-thinner filled the air. From within the swirl came first one student, then another and another. Through the expression of painting, freehand drawing and sculpture, art students learned unity, design, and color. Aspects—such as lettering and graphics—taught the more technical, giving an experienced background for future artists. Famous work of years past, experienced brushes, hands well-trained in modeling a figure from nothing—these turned into the history and appreciation of art.

Two new teachers, combined with one hundred seventy-six students and just as many approaches to creativity, taught eight classes each day. In words as well as actions, a feeling of awe for that which is beautiful emerged from the ordinary. More involved students will continue in art training for up to four years, each year bringing new ideas.

In future years, students who participated in arts as applied to the business world will furnish the needed ability for advertisements as used in newspapers and magazines. Newest addition to this thriving department is commercial art. During the first year of existence in New Hanover curriculum, this course encouraged an enrollment of thirty-three students at sixth and seventh periods. In preparation for technical work, students practiced drawing skills as related to the human figure.

Miss Susan Shirer, Art I and II, World History, and Mr. James Boone, Art I, II, III and IV, offer artistic techniques to Delores Felder, Marilyn Godwin, and Ronald Bonner.

Business Department Uses On-the-Job Training

New Hanover High's Business Education Department with 1,027 students enrolled, was two teachers richer this year, bringing its teacher total to thirty-three. With increased numbers of students enrolled, due to the merging of New Hanover and Williston High School, the teachers had some difficulty in planning their classes and in keeping up to date. In order to keep abreast of modern business, teachers attended conferences, visited businesses, and several had guest speakers for their classes. New adding machines, typewriters, and other machinery supplemented the department equipment for students.

Business education enabled interested students to prepare for full- or part-time office employment; others hoped to use the skills learned to help them finance their college education. The department sponsored Cooperative Office Occupations, a program which sought to give students an opportunity to work part-time in offices in the city and county in a variety of occupations—stenographic, clerical, bookkeeping. Many of the students later received full-time employment by their part-time employers. Others found that their experience would aid them in securing full-time positions elsewhere later in life.

Mrs. Maybell Courie, Bookkeeping I, II, counts money while watching Mr. Odis Stewart, Basic Business, Personal Typing, instruct a student in her typing.

Mrs. V. Smith, Shorthand I, Typing II, types her lesson for the next day while Mrs. Mary Hood, Office Practice, Typing II, jots down a telephoned message.

Miss Julia Spencer, Typing I, Shorthand II, Bookkeeping I, and Mrs. Memory Blalock, Typing I, leave their classes after a busy day.

Vocational Department Increases in Size,

Mr. David Stillman, Drafting II and III, observes Dottie Kelly as Mr. George Garrett, Drafting I, explains a drawing to Dora Hernandez.

Over seventy per cent of all New Hanover students participated in classes connected with the vocational department. As one of the five largest vocational centers in the state, it prepared students for employment after graduation, or entrance into college or for further technical training. More than 1,100 pupils, including approximately fifty girls studied in classes ranging from machine shop to bricklaying. With the addition of one teacher to the vocational staff, a new course supplemented the curriculum. Three classes of health occupations taught students practical aspects of first aid and home safety as well as information on nursing jobs available. Students in the trades classes put their knowledge to practical use, by erecting the storehouse at Greenfield Lake as a project of the carpentry classes, and by preparing some of the closed circuit television programs in connection with Channel 4. In addition, various teachers worked on planning a course in oceanography, which next year will be offered students interested in marine biology.

DE and ICT Expand Courses, Double in Numbers

As the bell rings and students skurry across the street to get to class on time, they are surprised to find groups leaving the campus. These pupils who are taking advantage of the Distributive Education and Industrial Cooperative Training Departments leave each day to spend part of the school hours training to become productive members of the business community. This unique program, which encourages students to get a good education as well as a good start in a job, has doubled in size since last year. Students attend regular classes as well as classes pertaining to their departments. Using a handbook with information on typical courses, the teacher presents materials catered to specific needs. After learning basic techniques in class, students train in businesses around the town. Many DE students are working in grocery stores, department stores, and furniture stores, while some ICT students chose to train as doctor assistants, hospital workers, architects, service station attendants, television repairmen and morticians. Whenever a high school student is observed helping a customer in a business around Wilmington, it is very possible that he is taking advantage of either the Distributive Education program or the Industrial Cooperative Training department.

Mr. Carter Newsome, ICT I and II, and Mr. Adam Thompson, ICT I and II, discuss student jobs with Mrs. Katie Smith, DE I and II, and Mr. Worth Potter, DE I and II.

Coach Ed Miastkowski, Drivers Education, instructs Sherry Malpass as Suellen Smith observes.

Two Teachers Instruct 200 Students

Screeching tires, the wail of a siren, and a crash sound throughout the corridor. The sounds fade into a hospital scene, then only a bright light on a screen. Dramatic movies such as this, used by the drivers' education program, stress the importance of safety on the road. Through classroom instruction and practical driving experience, over two hundred students, aged fifteen through seventeen years, learned the art of being safe, defensive drivers. Since the addition of a second teacher this year, the program offered training six periods a day. Participating students spend thirty hours in class and six hours driving, but unlike the summer program, the daily class accomplishes all requirements. During the first semester, students take class instruction and then apply their knowledge by actually driving during the rest of the year, for a total of sixty days' training.

Mr. E. A. Corbin, Drivers Education, prepares his records for his first class.

New Sports Instructors Complement Staff

Mrs. Jean Tillett, Girls' Physical Education and French II, explains soccer techniques to students Joyce Windley and Faye James.

Two hundred eighty students have participated in physical training classes under the leadership of capable, well-trained teachers and coaches. Over two hundred boys took part in eight classes taught by Coach Glen Sasser and Coach Pete Crane, the newest additions to the physical education department. The fine facilities at Brogden Hall and the fieldhouse and field furnish places for activities with the best possible advantages. In their classes, the coaches present fine training in classical sports, ranging from football, basketball, and softball to wrestling, weight-lifting, handball and track. Through a Round-Robin Tournament the boys learned team cooperation and enjoyed active physical training. During four periods each day, in the Girls' Gym on Princess Street, girls participated in hockey and soccer, as well as traditional basketball, volleyball, softball, tennis and individual sports. The seventy-five students in Mrs. Tillitt's classes have tried to set up a most interesting schedule for intramural and group competition. Warm-up exercises and active work during class have helped all of the physical education students to build skill and cooperation—practice for coping with the problems of a swiftly changing world.

Coach Pete Crane, Boys' Physical Education and Physical Science, offers tips to students Ivey McGee, Ken Wendorf, Lonnie Howard, and Leon Washington.

Coach Glenn Sasser, Boys' Physical Education, contemplates putting Clifton Herring into the game.

Fashions, Flavors, Families -

Mrs. Vivian Baynes and Mrs. Myrtle Harrell lead the nursery school children in singing.

Tangy, tantalizing smells drift through the halls of New Hanover High School as two hundred and fifty girls prepared themselves for their tomorrows in the Home Economics Lab. A total of five teachers taught the eight different courses offered in the varied fields of homemaking. Two of these teachers were new to the staff this year; Mrs. Annie Harris, Home Economics I and II, Clothing and Foods; and Mrs. Stella Honeycutt, Vocational Home Economics. The department acquired a new washing machine and much equipment from the Home Economics Department of Williston.

Grooming, home nursing, guidance, child care, family relations and consumer economics were all topics of study in home economics. To validate these topics, many outside speakers came and spoke to the classes. Field trips were quite frequent to places such as shift factories, fabric shops and grocery stores.

Under the direction of Mrs. Vivian Baynes, assisted by Mrs. Myrtle Harrell, the Nursery School was a place of firsthand experience for several girls who helped in the school during their free periods. With an enrollment of twenty-five children the nursery was often the site of much gaiety and laughter.

A warm day brings the nursery children and workers out to play.

The World of Home Economics

Mrs. Stella Honeycutt, Home Economics, helps Wanda Williams, Diane Goff, Coltena Newton, and Allene Lewis prepare a delectible dessert.

Mrs. Shirley Glover, Home Economics II, supervises Cindy Branch, Delores Marlowe, and Terry Lewis as they prepare for the District Future Homemakers of America Convention.

Mrs. Annie Harris, Home Economics I and II, Clothing and Foods, and Mrs. Jean Gornto, Home Economics I and II and Family Relations, assist Evelyn Klimek in mending the State Flag.

Library and Bible Classes Add New Books

Who would expect to find a high school class meeting in a church? Each day twenty-five students, attending Bible I and II classes, met in the Trinity Methodist Church building. To supplement class study these groups began a private reference library.

Students using the library this year found 23,619 books at their disposal, including 3,000 sent from Williston Senior High School. Twelve hundred dollars worth of audio-visual aids—such as filmstrips and transparencies—extended library facilities. One hundred five records waited to come alive when students played them. To supplement these, new records—like Moby Dick, A Man for All Seasons, and Bach Organ Music—were additions to the collection. Three daily and two weekly newspapers, among these a French newspaper LeFigaro, complemented the array of references. Seventy-three magazines diversified the reading materials. To numerous informative books, the library added the newest edition of Collier's Encyclopedia as well as The Encyclopedia of Philosophy and The Encyclopedia of Social Studies. Student assistants played an integral part in library operation.

During their study periods, thirty-one girls assisted the librarians. From this group, Betsy Coleman, Janice Blanton and Margaret Newman found time to design eye-catching bulletin displays.

Miss Ruth Spence, Bible I, II, explains a map of Biblical times to Julie Spivey.

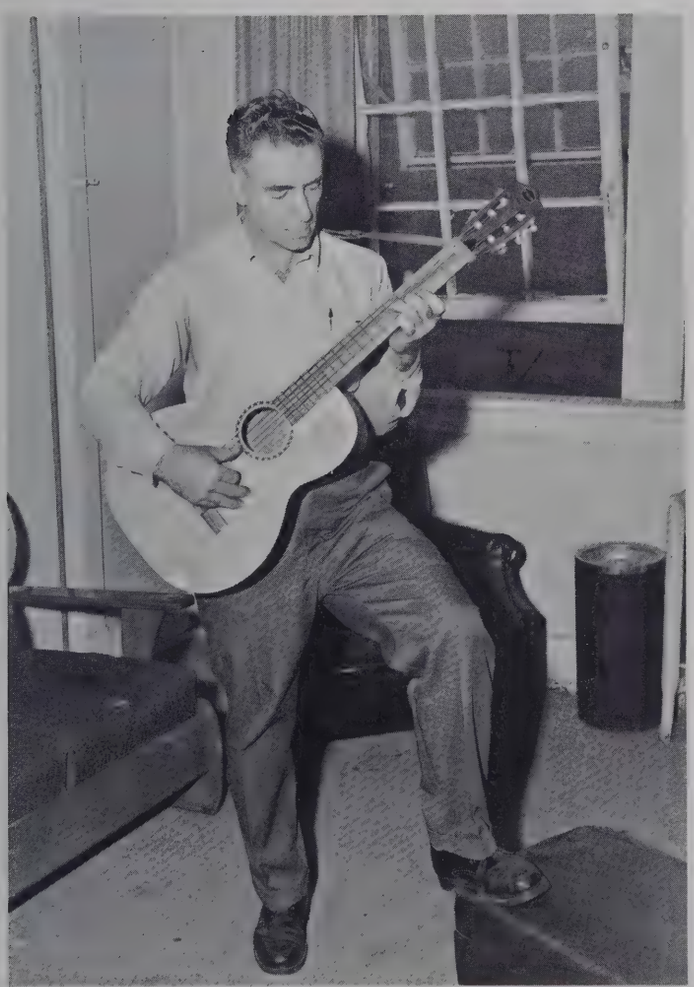

Librarians Miss Fannie O'Keef and Mrs. Martha Boone assist Reba Davis during a busy time.

School Assistants Prove Valuable Assets

Mrs. Christine Boone, school nurse, comes to the aid of Mrs. Hazel Warner, cafeteria manager.

Mr. Henry Vann, custodian, demonstrates his musical ability.

Each day at lunch time throngs of students descended upon the cafeteria. Assisting Mrs. Hazel Warner, Cafeteria Manager, in feeding the hungry mobs was a capable staff of seventeen, who this year provided lunches for 500 students per day or 10,000 persons each month. Although the cafeteria did not operate at a profit, expenditures for food supplies reached approximately $4,500 per month. New equipment this year included a food chopper and a coffee maker, which took three and one-half minutes to make eight cups of coffee!

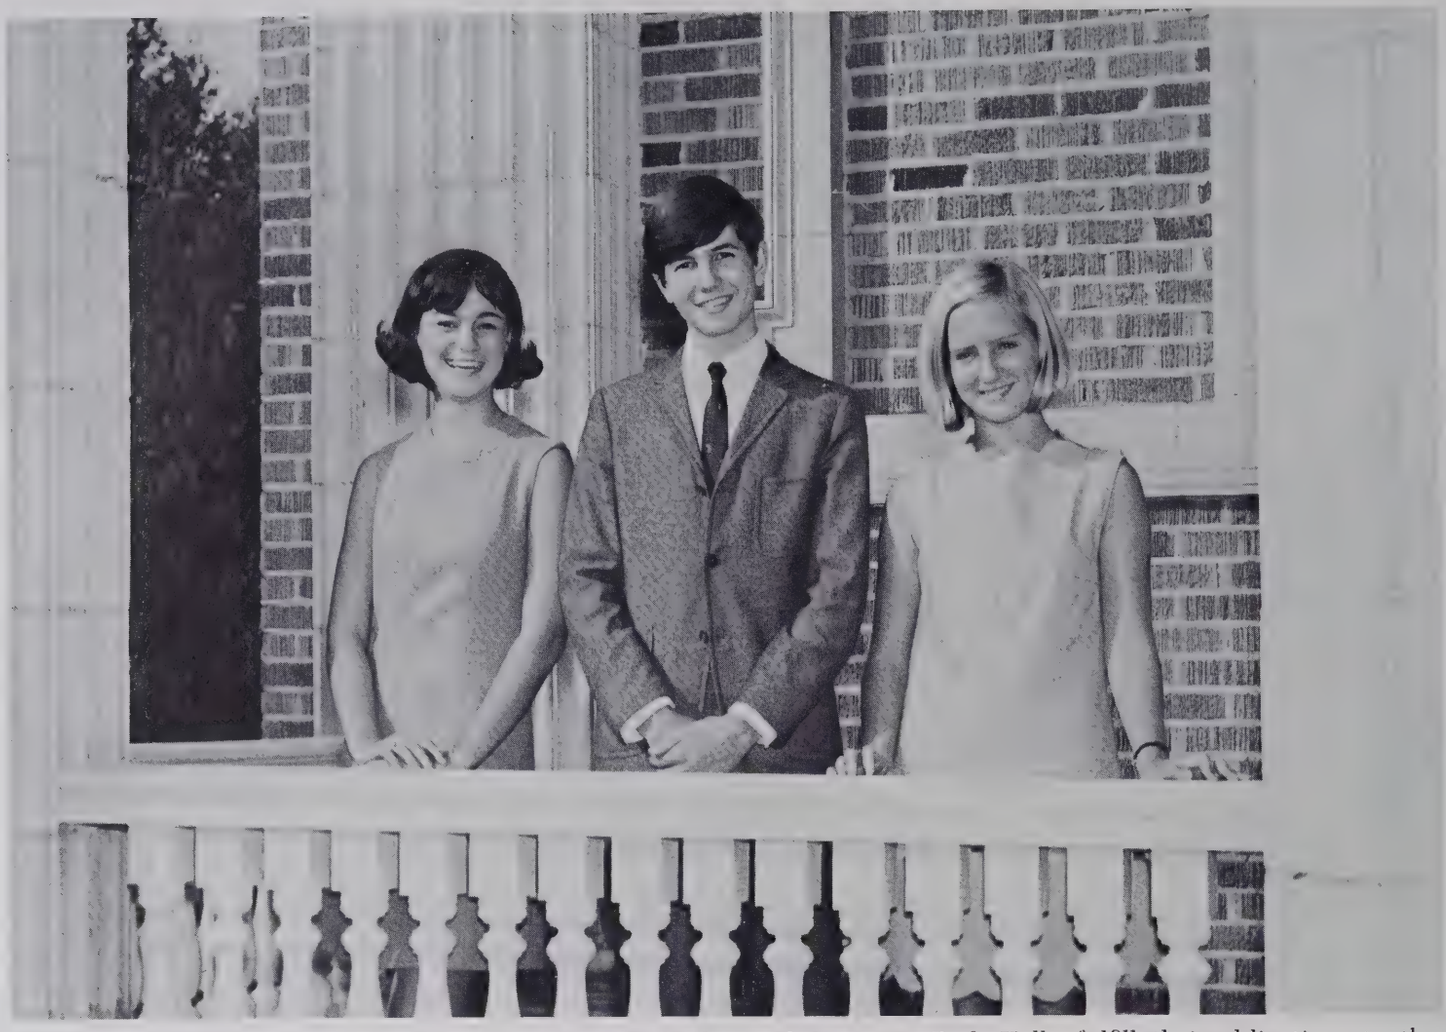

School nurse Mrs. Christine Boone saw an average of two patients per hour, or over one thousand per month. Processing applications for payment of school insurance was another one of her many duties. Complaints ranged from the usual headaches to fractured noses. Teachers, as well as students, received treatment for various ailments. Mrs. Boone also checked the twenty-six nursery school children each morning by taking temperatures and making a general health check. Assistants this year included two sophomores, four juniors and seven seniors. Money from PSTA membership supports the infirmary.

Mr. Henry Vann, Custodian, supervised a staff which included eight maids and three janitors. This vear for the first time custodial workers were on shifts; some were on campus through the school day, and others worked from three to eleven in the evening.

CLASSES

Conspicuous sophomores,
Curious juniors,
Confident seniors,
Sharing the disappointments and the victories of a year,
see through perspective
the intricate lacings of accomplishment drawn together
in delicate symmetry.

Sophomores

With summer freedom quickly slipping away, the sophomores met their first challenges of high school life. They elected class officers and senators to represent them during the school year in student government. Refusing to succumb to the usual anxieties experienced by tenth-graders, the sophomores led a most prosperous year. Stealing the spotlight from upperclassmen in the point system was a fine display of their hearty school spirit.

Exams taken in stride, the sophomores accepted them as a regular part of high school living. Then, all too soon, the year came to a close and 781 near-juniors left their impressive sophomore year behind, carrying with them a casual splendor of memories.

Toward Future

A lone sophomore, Jean Keels, seeks asylum from the perplexities of high school life.

President Walter Futch, Secretary Mary Huband, and Vice-President Woody Connette lead the Junior Class to a most successful year.

Juniors

Faced with new responsibilities and privileges, juniors returned to the familiar activities of school only to find them more challenging than those the year before. In making the first step toward college, juniors took the long PSAT. Juniors made the Junior-Senior prom one of the most dazzling spectacles of the year—something the seniors would remember for the years to come. After ordering class rings, juniors settled down to serious studying and cramming for exams. During the National Honor Society induction in the spring, a few of the hard working and studious juniors were inducted. Having received the treasured class rings, juniors now look forward to the next year when they will be The Senior Class.

Secretary Jan Needham, Vice-President Charles Ostrand, and President Mary Jo Lee endeavor to keep the Senior Class number one.

Seniors

High school draws to a close, and the senior pauses to survey his accomplishments. Reflections, both pleasant and painful, flash through his mind. Recollecting the inexorable teasing of the upperclassmen during the "Sophomore Battle Cry" often makes him shudder. Then comes the more bearable junior year in which he grew accustomed to the relaxed atmosphere of the Student Union marked by the gyrating beat of "Light My Fire" and to the bond of closeness between him and his classmates.

Reaching the end of his senior high years, the senior realizes that this is not an end but a beginning. Momentarily he wishes again for the security he felt among his 634 fellow seniors. Now on graduation night the pendulum pauses to gain momentum. He bids his old life farewell, then steps forward to follow the pendulum's swing to the future.

PRINTED AND BOUND BY THE R. L. BRYAN COMPANY, COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA

As the last threads of a year weave themselves into the tapestry of time,
Thoughts turn to the promises and uncertainties
of new beginnings.
And yet,
When the decisions are made
and the future planned,
the glint of polished brass,
the smile of a friend
—a laugh—
mischievously echo back to the lingering scents of school days
and youth.
